The local forecast for to-day is continued warm and fair weather. For Saturday, fair, colder at night.

The "low," or storm center referred to yesterday is still central north of us with its southern limit at Toledo. It has taken more definite shape and will pass off eastward to-day and create colder weather to-morrow night. A "high" area, or clearing condition is advancing from the southwest which will continue the clear weather at this point until Monday or later.

The temperature has risen about 10 degrees east of the Mississippi and fallen about 4 degrees west of it. Clear weather prevails except among the lower lakes.

The lowest temperature on the government weather map this morning was 10 degrees above in northern Minnesota—the highest was 56 at Galveston.

The maximum temperature in Toledo yesterday was 38 degrees, the lowest this morning 36 degrees.

THE WAR'S ECHOES

Chileans Have No Love for Pedro Montt,

And Still Claim He Misrepresented the Case.

Egan is Gaining Popularity Again.

Porvenir Speaks of Him with Respect.

English Papers Hold to the View That President Harrison's Message Was Not Justified and Was a Serious Blunder.

Santiago, Jan. 29.—The officials at the Moneda are feeling anything but comfortable over the situation of the controversy between the United States and Chile. Pedro Montt is blamed in a measure for misleading the government here as to the state of affairs.

It is well known that certain prominent men advised the government some time ago to go slow in this trouble, but their advice was not heeded. The course pursued in connection with the negotiations with the United States seems to have been actuated by fear of the radicals among whom Matta is a central figure.

It is rather ludicrous to note the change in the tone of remarks on Egan in the Santiago and Valparaiso papers. Porvenir, which has hitherto been heaping abuse on him, is now full of the most amiable comments on the American minister. With other papers it is the same.

London Comment.

London, Jan. 29.—The Standard this morning says that Senor Peirera, the Chilean minister of foreign affairs, cannot be suspected of any desire to make President Harrison look foolish, but, the Standard adds, cummunications made up for the absence of the design.

"We are not quite sure," the Standard continues, "that the judgment of the managers of his party will sincerely echo President Harrison's remark that the turn of affairs between the two countries is very gratifying."

The newspapers of this city join in saying that the second message of President Harrison has confirmed the previous opinions they expressed on the subject and claim there is a unanimous belief that President Harrison has been guilty of double dealing and that he was aware of Chile's apology before the message was sent to congress.

The English papers, however, have dropped their sneering references to the United States, and now seriously and briefly condemn President Harrison and predict a republican defeat in November.

New York Comment.

New York, Jan. 29.—The New York papers this morning comment on Chile's reply as follows:

The Herald says: "The reply is manly and graceful. It does honor to the government of that country as well as credit to the patriotism and statesmanship of Premier Peirera.

"In the light of the correspondence published this morning President Harrison's ultimatum seems hasty, uncalled for and unwarranted. The fortunate result is a victory for the American people and one honorable to Chile. It is not, however, a triumph of Mr. Harrison's jingo diplomacy but a triumph in spite of it."

The World says: "Punishment and humiliation, which are the revenges of monarchial governments, should be unknown in the brotherhood of republics. And now that Chile has expressed her willingness to make honorable amends for the acts of an irresponsible mob and the affront of a hot-headed minister, our response should be most generous and friendly."

The Tribune says: "The Chilean controversy has practically been closed by just and honorable action on the part of the Santiago government. The complications which have arisen, and are now practically adjusted, will have the salutary result of bringing Chile and the United States into more friendly and harmonious relations in future.

"The United States was entitled to its rights, and these it has amply secured. Chile has not in any sense been humiliated, while its respect for the United States has been increased by the firm and resolute stand taken for the maintenance of American rights."

The Times says: "The letter of Mr. Peirera is a manly, self-respectful and honorable communication."

RECEIVER APPOINTED.

Columbus, O., Jan. 29.—George T. Whitmore, of Akron, has, by the consent of both parties, been appointed receiver for the National Mutual Fire association and the Manufacturers' Mutual Fire association, the two insolvent insurance concerns at Akron, against which Attorney General Richards began quo warranto proceedings Wednesday.

READY TO DIE.

A Murderer Confesses That His Crime Was Premeditated.

Litchfield, Conn., Jan. 29.—Borjensen, the murderer of Emma Anderson, who is to be hanged to-day, was a trifle nervous yesterday and paced his cell continuously.

Mr. Erickson, the clergyman, spent a good part of the day with the prisoner, reading the Bible and praying. After Borjensen retired last night he slept soundly until 5 o'clock. At 7 o'clock he was shaved and donned his new black clothes.

At 9 o'clock the sacrament was administered by Rev. Erickson. Borjensen has become very religious lately. Yesterday he acknowledged the justice of the sentence and stated that he alone was responsible for the crime and that it had been premeditated for several days.

WAS A BELLE IN HER DAY.

Death of Mrs. Alice Green Iturbide Reported.

City of Mexico, Jan. 29.—Mrs. Alice Green Iturbide, who was married to a son of Emperor Iturbide, died yesterday. She was the mother of Prince Augustin Iturbide, who was sentenced to a year imprisonment for disrespectfully speaking of the administration of President Diaz, and contracted the disease of which she died while attending her son during his incarceration.

Mrs. Iturbide was formerly Miss Alice Green, and was one of the belles of Washington during the war of the rebellion.

KIPLING WILL COME OVER.

London, Jan. 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Rudyard Kipling and Mrs. Kipling's mother and sister, will visit the United States early in the spring. The party will remain a few months in America and then will start on a tour of the world, during the course of which they will visit Robert Louis Stevenson.

AFTER GREAT SUFFERING

Part of the Sea-Bound Italians Are Rescued.

Eighteen Men and Two Scows Picked Up.

The Rest of the Party Believed to Have Met Death in the Stormy and Icy Waves of Tuesday's Gale.

New York, Jan. 29.—Four of the 18 men who drifted out to sea on the tug Edwin Webster and four Barney dumping boats during the terrible gale of Tuesday have been rescued. After bringing these in the Luckenbach immediately started back in search of the other derelicts.

It is the general opinion among the tug boatmen on South street that the Webster was foundered and that her crew of 10 men are lost.

According to the captain of the Webster there were on board of her: George Clark, captain; Thomas Wall, engineer; ——— Lasher, pilot; four fireman, two deck hands and a steward whose names cannot be ascertained.

On board her tow, dumping boats 5 and 17, were:

Charles Crump, captain of No. 5; Flavois Canal, mate of No. 5; Alaf Dahl, captain of No. 17; Wm. Larrettson, mate of No. 17. The capture of the drifting boats 3 and 16 was a difficult and dangerous task and the rescued men and crew of the Luckenbach have thrilling tales to tell of their experience.

They had been drifting on a high sea in a terrible, freezing gale for nearly thirty-six hours before they caught sight of their rescuers and had almost given up hope of being saved.

Capt. Deane, of the Luckenbach says it was freezing cold and a high sea running when he started to the rescue.

"About 10 o'clock in the forenoon when about fifty miles off Fire Island we sighted two scows drifting together before the wind. Signals of distress were flying from the cabins of the scows, and putting on full speed we made for the drifting boats.

"When we got near enough to see the men on the decks they were waving hats and coats and shouting with all their might. They were overjoyed at our approach.

"We finally got a hawser fast and started ahead. It would have been impossible to take the men off the boats, even if they had been willing to come. The seas were running to high too make such an attempt.

"The scows were covered with ice and looked like small icebergs. The men on board had been very much frightened, and truth to tell, if we had not sighted them, they might have starved and frozen to death before being picked up."

THE ALLIANCE PROGRAM.

Congress to be Flooded with Bills.

Pretty Much Everything That the Farmer Has to Buy Will be Placed on the Free List.

Washington Jan. 29.—Alliance members of the house have had another conference at which all were present except Messrs Simpson and Otis, of Kansas, and Watson, of Georgia. A number of Alliance measures were discussed and one or two bills that are being prepared were read and considered, one of which will be introduced within a day or two.

Another meeting will be next Thursday for the purpose of discussing the sub-treasury scheme, preparatory to which Mr. Livingston, early this week, introduced house bill providing for the establishment of such an institution.

The members agreed fully upon their plan of action in this congress and it is certainly a most unique one.

They will introduce a flood of bills, putting in the free list pretty much everything that the farmer consumes. Their endeavor is to urge the passage of such bills as will decrease the revenues.

A deficit once created, it would be necessary in some way to meet it, and this could only be done, the alliance people contend, by the issuance of treasury notes. With these launched, the alliance men think the sub-treasury idea would be enacted into law.

This was the plan agreed upon, and it is understood that in conformity to it Mr. Moses, of Georgia, will introduce the first bill.

GRAVES OUT ON BAIL.

The Supreme Court Interferes in His Behalf.

It May be Three Years Before His Case Will be Reached by the High Court.

Denver, Col., Jan. 29.—The supreme court of Colorado this morning granted a writ of supersedeas in the case of Dr. Graves, who will now be released on bail. Owing to the crowded condition of the docket, it may be two or three years before the case will be reached.

SHOOK UP THE DRY BONES

Allen, of Mississippi, Addresses the House

On the War Just Closed with Chile.

He Wanted the Foreign Affairs Committee Increased, and Gave His Reasons Therefor—A Day of Amusement.

Washington, Jan. 29.—When the rules were being discussed in the house yesterday Mr. Allen, of Mississippi, moved to amend by increasing the foreign affairs committee from 13 to 75 members.

"Now, Mr. Speaker," said Mr. Allen, "the great struggle to which 13 men, the members of the foreign affairs committee, have been subjected for the last few days has prompted me to offer this amendment to increase their membership from 13 to 75. (Laughter).

"We have no right, sir, in my humble judgment, to impose so much responsibility upon 13 men. (Laughter). Thirteen, you will remember to, is an unlucky number (renewed laughter), and I do not want any unlucky things to happen when we come to deal with foreign affairs. (Laughter and applause).

"Now I suppose that in ordinary times of peace I should never have thought of making this proposition; but I have been prompted to it by the tremendous excitement to which we have been subjected for the last few day. (Laughter). I do not know but that it would be proper for me to state my reasons why my views upon the question of our foreign relations with Chile have not appeared in the public prints, and why I have not, like the others, given voice to my warlike feelings. (Great laughter).

"Sir, some 30 years ago I went to war—rather hastily. (Tumultuous laughter and applause). My experience in the war has never daunted my courage (laughter), but it has made me decidedly more cautious. (Renewed laughter). I do not want now to reflect on any of my confederate brethren who have rushed into this war with a zeal that I think is somewhat precipitous (laughter), but it strikes me there are some of them who seem to feel that their reputation for patriotic devotion to the country is a little impaired and they want to repair it. (Laughter).

"But, sir, my reputation for patriotic devotion to the country and my courage in time of battle is so well established that I do not need to rush into the newspapers to give advice. (Renewed laughter).

"But I think that that committee should be a great conservative committee. I for one do not blame the foreign affairs committee with any haste, and I am not going to censure them; but you know how easily 13 men might be taken unawares and rushed into war with some sort of precipitation. (Great laughter).

"Now, sir, recurring to the incidents that were rehashed to us in the correspondence between our government and Chile, I want to say that I never would have spoken on this subject until there was a satisfactory settlement of it. (Laughter). I am not as familiar with diplomatic correspondence between nations, perhaps, as the present secretary of state, Mr. Blaine, but I do know, Mr. Speaker, the code of honor that governs gentlemen in affairs of this kind, having spent the most of my life in living under that code and in fighting duels. (Great laughter).

"Most of the men that I have killed, sir, I have killed under that code (renewed laughter), but if we have to resort to the code, I must say that there has been some precipitation in our action.

"In Mississippi if when one gentleman institutes a correspondence with another and brings him down to the point of difference and finally sends him his ultimatum (laughter), if that man after sending that ultimatum were to rush into print and publish the correspondence before he had had time to hear from his ultimatum, he would be a persona non grata in that state. (Great laughter and applause.)

"It is not the proper thing when you have sent your ultimatum to your adversary to rush into print and give your side of the case to the country before you have heard from the ultimatum. (Renewed laughter).

"Just to illustrate how this thing strikes me I will read a sentence from an interview with a distinguished gentleman who once sat where you now sit, Mr. Speaker—I mean ex-Speaker Keifer. I read from the newspaper. Mr. Keifer thinks the sentiment in the republican party is drifting rapidly towards Harrison. (Laughter). His message on the Chilean imbroglio was issued just in time. (Great laughter and applause on the democratic side).

"Now, Mr. Speaker, just suppose he had waited a little while longer, think what might have happened. (Laughter). This 'drifting of sentiment' in the republican party towards that distinguished gentleman, the president of the United States, might have been stopped if he had not got in here with that Chilean message 'just in time.' (Laughter.)

"Why, sir, I remember that not a great while ago it was stated in the public prints that on one occasion, when the president was to go to New York the train that was to have left the depot at 10 minutes to 12 o'clock was detained until 10 minutes after 12 lest the president should travel on Sunday. (Great laughter). And yet I am informed that the president had a number of printers working all day last Sunday in order to get that message in here just in time.

"I see also from the newspapers, Mr. Speaker, that the chairman of the committee on foreign affairs was interviewed by another member of that committee, the gentleman from Michigan, Mr. Chipman. Mr. Chipman said to the gentleman: 'You must be glad that the committee is relieved from the great weight of responsibility,' and to that the chairman did not dissent. (Laughter). Now that shows how this committee was impressed with this responsibility and I repeat that it is not right to fix so much responsibility on a few men.

"I saw another thing in the newspapers, too, that distresses me somewhat. Patriotically inclined as I am, to uphold the American flag, and often as I have been willing to shed my blood and the blood of my first wife's relations in defense of that flag (laughter), I confess I felt a little bad when I read this statement made by the distinguished chairman of the foreign affairs committee, Mr. Blount, 'but I have no idea that they are going to force it further. No one can read that entire correspondence, gentlemen, without feeling the utmost sympathy at the almost humiliating attitude of the Chilean government.'

"Now, Mr. Speaker, why should we proceed with haste to bring the government of Chile into a state of humiliation, another republic, our sister republic, a part of the great 'pan.' (Laughter.) For a long time, Mr. Speaker, our distinguished secretary of state has been sending us documents about the Pan-American congress, and we have been making appropriations for that purpose.

"Now Chile is a part of the pan, yet here we are humiliating a part of this great pan by our hasty action. (Laughter). I am sorry, Mr. Speaker, that I have not had time to air my war views further, but I think I have given sufficient reasons why those 13 men should be relieved of their tremendous responsibility, and their number increased to 75." Prolonged laughter and applause).

WANT A LAW REPEALED.

Youngstown, O., Jan. 29.—A bill has been drawn up here by a minority element, and given to Representative Davis to have it introduced, repealing the law creating the board of city commissioners here.

STRAWBOARD TRUST.

The Price Advanced to Forty Dollars a Ton.

Noblesville, Ind., Jan. 29.—An agreement has been signed by all the strawboad mills in Indiana by which prices for 1892 will be 30 per cent. higher than they were last year and consumers will be compelled to pay $40 per ton for strawboard instead of $30 as heretofore.

This will advance the price of all materials packed in pasteboard boxes. The agreement was brought about by the American Strawboard company, otherwise known as the strawboard trust, which has hitherto been at war with the smaller concerns. The works in this city belong to the trust.

A SMASHUP AT OBERLIN.

Oberlin, O., Jan. 29.—Lake Shore passenger train No. 31, Oberlin accommodation, ran into a big piece of timber on the South Pleasant street crossing, which was being hauled across the track by two teams and a pair of bobs. The train was derailed and the pilot of the engine smashed and badly broken. No one was hurt.

BURGLARY AT ZANESVILLE.

Zanesville, O., Jan. 29.—Burglars forced an entrance into the office of the street railway company and broke open the strong box, securing $100. No clue.

OHIO REPUBLICANS.

Preparing for the League Meeting.

The Banquet at Which Mr. Harrison is to be Toasted to a Brown by His Enemies.

Columbus, O., Jan. 29.—The regular state convention of the Ohio Republican league will be held in Columbus on February 12. The convention will meet at 10 o'clock a. m. Owing to the fact that the number of republican clubs has increased during the past year so largely, and that there are something like 600 clubs all over the state, and the further fact that this year the presidential contest is to be waged, and that the club organization will take a prominent part in the work of the campaign, the coming convention will not only be the most interesting, but by far the largest convention of the kind that has ever occurred in Ohio.

Each club is entitled to five delegates at the convention. Officers will be elected for the coming year, a plan of the campaign discussed and mapped out, and many important questions will be considered. Gen. Clarkson, the president of the National Republican league and the chairman of the national executive committee, will be present and participate in the proceedings of the convention. Many other eminent men from various parts of the country will also be present, and it is expected that there will be at least 2,000 delegates in attendance.

On the night of the convention the fifth annual Lincoln banquet of the league will be held in Armory hall, commencing at 8 o'clock. The list of speakers on that occasion embraces many of the most eminent and eloquent republican speakers in the country, including among others, Chauncey M. Depew, who will respond to the toast of "Abraham Lincoln," Gen. Clarkson, Hon. J. S. Fassett, of New York; Hon. J. P. Dolliver, of Iowa; Hon. J. C. Burroughs, of Michigan; Governor McKinley, and many prominent republicans of our own state. Hon. J. B. Foraker will act as toastmaster.

BOILER EXPLOSION.

Reading, Pa., Jan. 29.—The boiler of a locomotive on the Reading railroad exploded this morning near St. Clair, 40 miles north of this city. Engineer David Zeigler, Firemen N. Paulski and Jacob Turner, and Brakemen Henry Sands and Jack Wintergreen were instantly killed. Their remains were found horribly mutilated.

PERISHED IN THE FLAMES.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 29.—Thomas Bell, aged 22 years, the lunatic son of R. T. Bell, set fire to the family residence yesterday and perished in the flames. His mother narrowly escaped death.

DR. TUPPER

Gives Chairman Taylor a Piece of His Mind

On an Interview Credited to the Champaign County Statesman —What the Records Show.

To the Editor: Hon. S. M. Taylor, chairman of the house finance committee, in yesterday's Commercial Gazette, is reported as saying, upon his return from the Toledo and Cleveland Asylum for Insane, "that the Toledo asylum is fast going to ruin, and is now one of the worst managed, if not the worst, in the state. The officials could not tell him as much about its affairs as he himself knew."

Now the affliction from which this Solomon Taylor is suffering is only this and nothing more.

Not long since I received his letter asking "for the uses and purposes of his committee, a complete list of the employes, their duties and pay, and the counties from which they came, from the superintendent down."

This information was promptly furnished, including a full copy of our pay-roll, with a statement that the asylum records did not show the counties from which its employes came. The gentleman answered, "the report was satisfactory as far as it went," but he would like for me to obtain the county information, and stating that the committee would visit the asylum next day. I ordered a personal canvass and gave Mr. Taylor the counties as furnished me.

Now the official annual report of the condition of this institution herewith transmitted shows a larger per cent. of recoveries, a greater average of patients under treatment than ever before, our death rate being also less, our per cent. of recoveries on admissions being 45.80, while it was but 35.72 last year, the death rate on the same kind and number last year being four times that of this year, our per cent. of deaths of number treated being but 5.30, while is was 6.26 last year, and our per capita cost, inclusive of current expense and officer's salaries, being $2.70 less than in 1890, so completely gives the lie to the gentleman's findings that the only excuse possible for the uncorking of his storehouse of asylum knowledge is to be found in the fact that I failed to make the stereotyped Norwegian salutation of "Where you live?" to every employe immediately on receipt of his first epistle.

Under my administration the intelligence, honesty, ability and kindness of applicants has concerned me more in their employment than the locality from which they hailed. Hoping Mr. Taylor may live long and die happy, I am,

Most respectfully yours,

Toledo, Jan. 29. C. E. TUPPER.

HALE OPENS THE BOOM.

Mr. Blaine Must Not Be Lost in the Chilean Shuffle.

A Resolution to Give Him a Chance to Talk.

The McKinley Bill Condemned in Strong Terms by Republicans on the Floor of the United States Senate.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Mr. Hale, calling up his resolution asking the secretary of state for information on the process of reciprocity, addressed the senate on this subject yesterday.

He opened by saying in the present happy subsidence of the war news he hoped senators would not deem it unfitting to have their attention called to some of the victories of peace.

The resolution which had just been read, when fully replied to by the state department, would contain more definite and detailed information than had yet been presented on this subject. He did not hesitate to say that it was the reciprocity part of the tariff bill which floated the whole measure, and that without it the storm which afterwards broke upon the McKinley bill would have swamped it, and it would have gone down.

The senator from New York, said Mr. Hale (looking at Mr. Hill's empty chair, that gentleman not being present), who had lately entered this body, bringing as his credential of leadership, the trophy of a great state, chained and gagged and despoiled of her political rights, had paused in his work of spoliation at the Saratoga convention to denounce the "Blaine reciprocity humbug."

Describing in detail the workings of reciprocity agreements, he first referred to Brazil. Previous to reciprocity we had taken from the country $60,000,000 of products annually, and sent her in return $10,000,000. Under reciprocity our trade with Brazil had increased nearly $2,000,000 in the last seven or eight months, and he believed in a few years would increase so as to bring our exports to nearly an equality with our imports.

In Cuba and Porto Rico, the powerful effect of the reciprocity provision had also been made apparent. The more extended treaty which would go into effect on the first of next July (on the expiration of most favored nation treaties) would give the United States almost a monopoly of Cuban trade.

Under that treaty not only would American flour and other agricultural products be admitted free, but a reduction of 25 to 50 per cent. on existing tariffs would be made on a long list of manufactured products.

He anticipated that the political effect of this extended intercourse would be as great as its commercial results. Cuba would cease to have commercial or financial value for Spain, and would drift apart and become rather independent, or a part of our great system. These were some of the results of reciprocity. It was a great deal better than war.

In conclusion he said: "The good work is by no means completed. Negotiations are pending with other Central and South American republics which can only be hindered from producing the same results with other countries by the hostility of the opposition to the entire measure.

"I notify the gentlemen on the other side that they have not heard the last of reciprocity. This achievement of republican statesmanship will be carried before the people in the next presidential canvass throughout the entire extent of this broad land.

"There is no farmer, no manufacturer, no miner, no laborer who is not interested in its success and its maintenance as a part of our system of foreign trade, and when at last, it has become incorporated and accepted as a part of our national policy we may look to see our democratic brethren flocking to its support and trusting to that short memory, which is said to be common to all people claiming to be the author and finish on this great achievement."

Mr. Hale's speech was much commented upon and the democrats are overjoyed to find the republicans obliged to condemn the McKinley bill, and to publicly state that the only thing that saved the bill was the injection of a democratic section into it.

STEAMERS IN COLLISION.

Paris, Jan. 29.—The steamships Lindhurst and Concha have been in collision at Dunkirk, the latter being considerably damaged.

Queenstown, Jan. 29.—The steamship Stubbenhunk, for Boston from Hamburg, has put back to this port with a broken propeller.

AID FOR RUSSIA.

Grain and Flour Rushed to the Front.

All Classes of Business Lending a Hand to Push the Food on Its Way Across.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 29.—Much of the flour contributed to the Russian famine fund is now on the road to Buffalo and New York city, where it is being stored awaiting final shipping orders.

The insurance people of Buffalo have donated a $25,000 policy covering the grain now in storage and belonging to the fund. Yesterday the following dispatch was received by the Minnesota commissioners from B. H. Lane, secretary and manager of the Terminal Warehouse company in New York city:

"We will give free storage for all the flour you can send for the purpose. The more the better."

The railroad companies all over the country are unusually kind and are doing all in their power to expedite shipments. The fund by the end of this week will pass the $2,500,000 mark.

TOLEDO'S DELEGATION

Meets the River and Harbor Committee.

An Earnest Effort Being Made to Secure Money Enough to Dig Up Goose Point.

Washington, Jan. 29.—(Special)—A committee composed of Mayor Emmick, S. C. Schenck, D. B. Smith and William Carrington are in the city and to-day and to-morrow will appear before the river and harbor committee in advocacy of an appropriation sufficiently large to thoroughly dredge and clean the Maumee river, at least from Cherry to Monroe streets.

There is no doubt but an appropriation sufficient to carry on the work of the straight channel will be appropriated, but to secure this additional amount will require a vast amount of work.

The gentlemen are prepared to give the committee on rivers and harbors both eloquence and facts, and are hopeful of success. They will leave to-morrow night.

CLASSIFYING DRUNKARDS

The Old Bill Up Again in the Legislature.

The Snook-Sutphen Contest in the Senate.

The Case Will be Continued at the Session of Tuesday Next—Interesting Columbus Gossip.

Columbus, Jan. 29.—(Special)—At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the senate resumed consideration of the Snook-Sutphen judicial contest case. After reading the evidence of Williams county it was found that two illegal votes had been cast for both contestor and contestee, and that the board of elections had counted six votes for the contestor and three for the contested that the judges threw out on account of irregularity.

If this action is sustained, and there is no doubt of what republicans will do, the contestee will gain three votes.

In Defiance county the contestor claims a gain of four votes, and here is another place where politics will rule in the decision when presented to a vote, as the contestor claims two votes which were not counted, and that three illegal votes were counted for his opponent.

All evidence of the contestor was submitted by 6 o'clock last evening, and the contestee will commence with his evidence on Tuesday of next week at 3 o'clock, when it is said Hon. W. D. Hill will throw a bomb into the camp of the republican senators.

A republican senator was heard to say that it was a bad case and that it was a mistake to bring the contest on such frail evidence, but then politics does not stop for anything, for the word has gone out to bolster up the cause of Snook in attacking Sutphen by claiming he made a rampant democratic speech on being nominated, when in fact he only made a short address accepting the nomination from the hands of his party and friends.

Having served on the bench for many years, this was the first time that he ever appeared in convention to make a speech. If he presents the case that it is claimed he will, the senate cannot give the seat to Snook only on the grounds of political expediency.

Reforming Legislators.

Representative Dicks, of Hamilton county, yesterday afternoon introduced a bill that has been in the hopper of legislative measures for years past and has been allowed to die at the end of every session. Last winter Day, of Hamilton county, introduced it, but never pressed its consideration as he did not understand its provisions.

Its author says that if the provisions of the bill are carried out, there will be a great reformation of drunkards, by their arrest and detention in asylums, sanitariums, etc.

The bill has three classes of drunkards, those in the habit of getting "full" every day are termed "habituals," those in the habit of taking frequent sprees "periodicals" and those who take sprees at long intervals "occasionals."

When a relative, guardian or friend makes complaint to a justice of the peace, that functuary shall examine not less than three witnesses. After their examination and if in the opinion of the justice, a case has been made against the person complained of, and the same should come under the head of "habitual," he shall be committed for the term of 12 months to some asylum or sanitarium.

"Occasionals" and "periodicals" must go through the same course of law for commitment, but their term is only six months and may retain their liberty, by furnishing a bond of $500 to refrain from drinking for one year.

A violation of the conditions is ground for a recommitment and after being released a member of either class is subject to the provisions of the law without regard to the fact that they had been once "reformed." County commissioners are authorized to provide suitable buildings to be used as inebriate asylums and the governor is to appoint five trustees to look after places where victims of alcoholism are confined.

Watching Standard Oil Co.

At the afternoon session of the senate yesterday the senate, on motion of Senator McConica, reconsidered the vote whereby Nichols' bill authorizing the board of public works and canal commissioners to lease state lands for oil and gas purposes. This action was taken so that such leases should be advertised and sold to the highest bidder. It is said that this property is very valuable and the state is not realizing on the leases what is paid to individual property owners in and around St. Mary's reservoir.

House Proceedings.

The following bills have passed the house:

Mr. Griffin—Authorizing by an amendment of insurance laws, the commissioner to deduct the expense of valuing life policies from the fees collected.

Mr. Garber—Making it unlawful for any person to cut, break, tap or make connection with telegraph or telephone wire.

Mr. Wood—Authorizing county commissioner to establish free ferry over any of interior streams of state, where it is not expedient to build bridge.

The Governor Ill.

Gov. McKinley is confined to his hotel on account of stomach troubles, and could not attend the dinner last evening prepared by a number of his friends. It is said that the sanitary condition of his rooms in the state house is the real cause of his sickness.

Habitual Criminal Law.

A case has been filed in the the supreme court to test the constitutionality of the habitual crime law. Friends of Convict Kline, of Montgomery, are testing the law.

In the Senate.

The following bills have been introduced in the senate:

Mr. Beebe—Applying the system of electing jurors in common pleas courts to justice courts.

Mr. Burns—Authorizing the council of any village to erect a pound for the incarceration of stray live stock.

Mr. Motter's bill to authorize the commissioners of Erie county to issue thirty-five thousand in bonds to meet a deficiency in the general bridge and road funds passed the senate this morning.

The senate adopted Mr. Strehli's resolution requesting senators and representatives in congress to vote for a bill to purchase Temple farm, at Yorktown, Virginia. The senate committee on federal relations has reported back, without recommendation, Mr. Paxton's resolution relating to the election of United States senator by a direct vote of the people, but the orators will have a chance to howl, as it was postponed until next Tuesday.

Mr. Sterrett has introduced a bill in the house requiring road supervisor, when informed that black knot exists in any orchard trees in his district, to destroy the same if not done by the parties owning the orchard, the expense of the same to be collected as other taxes.

Both branches of the legislature has adjourned until Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Pretty strong reasons for trying Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. In the first place, it cures your catarrh—no matter how bad your case, or of how long standing. It doesn't simply palliate—it cures. If you believe it, so much the better. There's nothing more to be said. You get it for 50 cents, from all druggists.

But perhaps you won't believe it. Then there's another reason for trying it. Show that you can't be cured, and you'll get $500. It's a plain business offer. The makers of Dr. Sage's Remedy will pay you that amount if they can't cure you. They know that they can—you think that they can't. If they're wrong, you get the cash. If you're wrong, you're rid of catarrh.

Here are some of the symptoms of Catarrh: Headache, obstruction of nose, discharges falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody, putrid, and offensive; eyes weak, ringing in ears, deafness; offensive breath; smell and taste impaired, and general debility. Only a few of these likely to be present at once.

WAS AN AUTOGRAPH CRANK

But He Turned His Signatures to Good Advantage.

Several Chicago Citizens Were Dined and Wined Only to be "Taken In" by a Shrewd Young Man.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Fourteen young men, prominent in business circles, have been "taken in" by a young man calling himself W. L. Frantz, of Philadelphia.

He came here two months ago, registered at the Hotel Metropole and accepted a position with the Equitable Life Insurance company, of New York.

He made many acquaintances and two weeks ago invited his new-found friends to a private banquet at the Hotel Metropole.

Among those present were James Hill, son of the junior member of the firm of Willoughby & Hill; Sherman Miller, brother of G. O. Miller, one of the proprietors of the Hotel Metropole; A. Bournique and his son, Alvin; Ferdinand Halbach, Charles Lester, Wilde Hammel and a number of others. During the festivities Frantz, in a neat speech, said he was an autograph crank and it would give him great pleasure to put the autographs of his friends present in his collection. He distributed blank cards around and soon had all the autographs.

Now Frantz is gone, and the banks are notifying his friends by every mail that checks and notes bearing their autographs are pressing for payment. Frantz raised over $3,000 by the scheme.

THE LATE C. F. M'LAIN.

The Toledo Traveling Men's Association Pay Respects.

This afternoon at 12:55 the remains of the late C. F. McLain arrived in this city by the Ann Arbor from Grand Rapids, Mich., accompanied by Miss Fannie McLain, of this city, and Mrs. Umstead, of Cleveland, sisters of the deceased, and also by G. T. Williams and Robert Hanna, of the firm of Ball, Barnhart, Putnam Co., of Grand Rapids, Mich., the firm for which Mr. McLain traveled.

The Toledo Traveling Men's association met this morning to arrange for attendance at the funeral, and twenty-five or thirty members were at the depot. Messrs. R. W. Clark, H. A. Weeman, J. W. Marshall, J. M. Eckels, John Winfield and Squire Garnsey were appointed to represent the association at Tiffin this afternoon, where the funeral exercises will take place on the arrival of the train from Toledo.

Mrs. Sawbaur, of Emporia, Ks., another sister, met the sad party in this city.

The floral offerings were very numerous, including a beautiful emblem from the Traveling Men's association, and several remembrances from teachers in the schools.

For some days he has been gradually succumbing to an attack of neuralgia of the stomach, but would not give up work. To-day he is confined to his bed, suffering very great pain and Dr. E. B. Fullerton, his physician, regards it as a serious attack.

THERE MAY BE PEACE

Between the Boss Bakers and Their Men.

Committees in Session in Druid Hall to Arbitrate the Points of Difference.

The members of the Bakers' Protective association apparently concluded second thoughts were best, and in consequence sent a committee to Druid hall this morning, although yesterday they disclaimed any intention of so doing.

Every firm in the association had a representative on the committee, and negotiations on the part of the union were conducted by the committee appointed last night at the Central Labor union, Messrs. C. H. Terwilliger, Henry Strochlein and August Zimmerman.

The debate was animated not to say at times acrimonious. The session opened soon after 9 o'clock in a room on the second floor of the hall, while in a room on the floor above the union was in session. At 1 o'clock this afternoon the report was given out that the principal point in dispute had been adjusted, the bosses agreeing to forego the use of the Vienna brand of yeast. Minor differences had arisen in the course of the trouble, and these were under debate at that hour. It looks as though a satisfactory compromise will be reached and the men will go to work to-night as usual.

LOOKING UP WOODS' CASE.

Investigating Senator Voorhees' Charges.

The "Blocks of Five" and Coy Conspiracy Gone Over Before the Judiciary Committee.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The senate was not in session to-day, so the committee on judiciary had unlimited time to conduct its secret hearing into the charges preferred against Judge Woods, of Indiana, by Senator Voorhees, in opposition to favorable action on his nomination to be judge of the fifth judicial circuit court created under the act of last congress.

Action on the charges has been hanging fire for several weeks owing to the recent absence of Senator Voorhees in Indiana, and his illness since his return to Washington.

The committee met several times to hear the charges made, but each time Senator Voorhees failed to appear. He finally made his charge in writing. Senator Voorhees was not present at the hearing this morning, but his colleague, Senator Turpie, presented them.

The entire morning was devoted to the hearing of a number of witnesses from Indiana. The charges preferred against Judge Woods were read to them and then the answer of Judge Woods denying the allegations against his official conduct was placed in evidence.

Nearly all the witnesses heard was connected in some way with the "blocks-of-five" and the Coy conspiracy cases. The witnesses summoned to appear were Judge Solomon Claypool, who was the prosecuting attorney in these cases for the state of Indiana and the citizens committee of Indianapolis; Leon O. Bailey, deputy attorney general of Indiana; Dr. L. I. Butler, N. C. Butler, clerks of the Indiana district court; Hon. J. H. Rice, ex-state senator; Wm. Nichols, a clerk in the district court; ex-Assistant Attorney E. B. Sellers, of Winona; Hon. F. C. Nutt, of Terre Haute, and Mr. Ochiltree, of Rushville.

DIED ALMOST TOGETHER.

A short time ago an aged man named Patrick Moran, of Company A, Fourteenth Ohio, was taken to the Soldiers' home because of his inability to work, occasioned by rheumatism. His wife, who was about 70 years old, remained at their home in this city, and was cared for by friends. She was also helpless with rheumatism. On the night of January 2 the old man died of heart disease. Time was not allowed for the fact to be communicated to his aged wife, for she died the following morning at 3 o'clock. She knew nothing of her husband's illness, and the short space of time between the hours of their death may be reckoned as a coincident.

Resolutions Favoring Changes in the Interstate Commerce Bill Also Adopted.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The national board of trade to-day elected its corps of vice presidents, one from each organization represented.

The committee on bankruptcy reported recommending the passage by congress of the Torrey bankruptcy bill, which was agreed to.

2. That the report and findings of the committee shall have the force and effect of reports of masters in chancery in federal courts.

3. To authorize and empower the committee to employ competent and permanent counsel to represent it in all litigation growing out of the enforcement of the law.

The resolutions were adopted; also one offered by Mr. Truckee, directing the officers of the board to address the president, recommending him in fulfilling vacancies on the committee to consider men trained in the transportation business—merchants and manufacturers.

THE RESULTS

Which Follow the Prevailing Epidemic of La Grippe.

Evidence Substantiating Dr. Copeland and Associates' Claims as Successful Specialists—Mr. Sandberg's Testimony.

There is one bad result which follows la grippe, that is, the numerous cases of chronic catarrh and bronchitis that will remain as a reminder of la grippe's baleful influence. The press has made so light of the danger, that the people as a rule, think there is none. They stay in the house for a day or two and then go about their business as usual in spite of the sneezing and coughing. They do not realize what this sneezing and coughing may lead to. A chronic catarrh, a chronic bronchitis, possibly a pneumonia, followed by consumption, may result from their thoughtlessness. The effects of such an epidemic as we are passing through, last for weeks and months and cost the people thousands of dollars, not only in loss of health, but in actual money paid out to rid themselves of ills consequent upon their carelessness, and which a few more days' stay in the house would have saved them.

"Catarrh is a little thing at first, but may eventuate in terrible suffering. We all know what a cold in the head is, and when we catch one we look forward to the usual nine days of coughing and sneezing and blowing our noses. But now imagine that cold constant, continually with us, growing worse steadily and with no hope that in nine days we shall be rid of it, but knowing that it will be our constant and faithful companion for life if we do not get it cured—THAT IS CATARRH. We physicians have instances of it daily, and although we are forever warning our patients to use a little care and not catch cold, how many are there who pay attention to our words?

A Local Instance.

To give you an illustration of what I have just said, I have here the case of Charles J. Sandberg, who lives at the corner of Collingwood and Lafayette street. Mr. Sandberg says:

"I suffered from a catarrhal condition for a number of years. Of late years it has been much worse, and I began to fear I never would get rid of it. I had severe headaches nearly all the time. At times I would have a bad cough; I was constantly raising mucus; my head would stop up, and hard lumps formed in the nostrils; my ears became affected.

Charles J. Sandberg, Corner Collingwood Avenue and Lafayette Street.

I had a constant roaring and buzzing sound that impaired my hearing; the sense of smell was nearly gone and my breath was offensive. My tonsils became so enlarged as to change my voice and make speaking difficult. I had pains in my chest—sharp, shooting pains that would extend to my back. I had night sweats and my appetite was poor; I suffered considerably from constipation, and in fact, my whole system was run down.

"Some time ago I began treatment with Dr. Copeland and associates, whose offices are at 706 Madison street. They have done for me more than any other doctors or all the patent medicines and remedies that I have taken. I have increased in weight several pounds. I can sleep well. In fact, I feel better to-day than I have for many years.

They Have Cured Me.

And I cheerfully recommend them to those suffering as I did. Dr. Copeland and associates are gentlemen; physicians of ability; and are doing a great amount of good to suffering humanity in this city."

TARIFF LEGISLATION.

The Ways and Means Committee Takes Action.

A Resolution Passed to the Effect That Separate Bills, Instead of a General Bill, be Reported.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The democratic members of the house ways and means committee met to day and by a vote of seven to three adopted a resolution offered by Mr. Byran, that in the sense of the committee separate bills should be reported to the house instead of a general bill for the revision of the tariff.

Those voting aye were Springer, chairman; Montgomery, (Ky.), Whiting, (Mich.); Shively, (Ind.); Cockran, (N. Y.); Stevens (Mass.), and Bryan (Neb.).

Those voting against the proposition were: McMillan (Tenn.); Turner (Ga.), and Wilson (W. Va.).

BIG RAILROAD DEAL.

The C., H. & D. Reaching Out for New Fields.

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 29.—One of the most important railroad deals ever attempted in the west is now incubating. Ever since Mr. Ives cut his caper with the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton that railroad has been laying low and apparently making plenty of money.

Now the C., H. & D. is about to jump out and startle western competitors with a deal that will cut a swath in two or more ways. In fact, that road is about to absorb the Indianapolis, Decatur & Western and Terre Haute & Peoria roads.

The deal also includes, it is said, the Iowa Central. This will create a new line from Cincinnati to St. Louis and the Northwest, via Metcalfe, on the Clover Leaf line, and will tap an important section of the country. The deal will affect the Vandalia, but also cutting into the Peoria, Decatur and Evansville. It will likely make an important difference in the freight receipts of both roads. The Vandalia may have her Cincinnati connection broken off by the deal.

It is understood that the deal may be consummated within the next ninety days. A preliminary trip for observation has been made by the C., H. and D. officials, and the negotiations are now in progress.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING.

For a general business I believe there is but one perfectly satisfactory advertising medium—the daily newspaper.

No matter what the nature of a community is, if a daily newspaper has a chance at the people it sorts them out as certainly as if they were put through a mental sieve.

Th progressive, enterprising, wide-awake, money-spending, life-enjoying citizen, wherever he is, is always hungry in the head—he wants a daily newspaper; he'll get one if he can.

Put an advertisement before the readers of a daily newspaper and you take the cream of any population. You go straight home to the people who can buy and who are ready to buy.—M. M. Gillman, Wanamaker's advertising agent, in Printer's Ink.

FLOWERS AS FOOD.

The flower buds of the marsh-marigold are said to make excellent pickles. The common clove is a dried flower bud, and it becomes an ingredient of various articles of food. But the most remarkable of all food flowers is that produced by the mahua trade of India, whose fleshy blossoms form a staple article of food among the poor. The people of the hill tribes could hardly exist without a regular supply of mahua flowers, which are pulpy and sweet, but somewhat nauseous to the unaccustomed palate. The surplus crop of these blossoms is, to some extent, dried, but the main part of the uneaten supply is put into a rude still, which gives a copious supply of an exceedingly fiery and irritating arrack, so strong that it has to be diluted with ten or twelve parts of water before it is considered a safe article of beverage.

CURRENT TOPICS.

Berlin is to have shortly a crematory, erected at the city's cost in the Friedrichsfeld cemetery, where bodies of the poor and unknown and of the subjects of anatomical investigation at clinics and hospitals will be reduced to ashes. The bodies from the anatomists' tables alone number about 1,000 annually. To further this practice the Berlin Society for Cremation has petitioned the parliamentary commission on the civil code that the choice between burial and burning be granted hereafter to every German citizen.

The registrar general's annual report of births, deaths and marriages in England for the year 1890 was published a few days ago, and it contains many interesting facts. The birth rate was in the proportion of 30 to 1,000 persons living, the lowest birth rate recorded in any of the last fifty years. The death rate was high, 19 to 1,000. And by the way, the tables of international vital statistics show a universal rise in the death rate, which is explained by the very general prevalence throughout Europe of epidemic influenza. The marriage rate rose in 1890. It is said that the marriage rate is an index of prosperity, and if this be so the condition of England has been improving for four successive years.

Actual experiment may show that the suggestion of the Kentucky man who pronounced the mammoth cave to be a "fine storage warehouse" is not so grotesque after all. A southern orange-grower has placed several boxes of oranges and lemons in a cave where the temperature was about 50 degrees and the air dry, and he has succeeded in keeping the former in excellent condition for 16 months and the latter for a year. The temperature of the mammoth cave is about 50 degrees the year around, while the air is so dry that the remnants of the old wooden nitre vats seem imperishable. The success of this method of keeping oranges would prove a bonanza to orange-growers, as it would enable the Florida people to market their crop when there was the greatest natural demand for it.

From any point of view the condition of Newfoundland is not a satisfactory one, and it promises to grow worse rather than improve. The basis of Newfoundland's prosperity has been the fishing industry. With the decline of this and the failure or inability to introduce anything else, the course of the colony, perhaps is only the natural one. The census of the island, which has just been completed, places its population at 202,000, less than half that of Boston, while the area under cultivation is only about 50,000 acres. Eight years ago the population was 197,335, only about 2 1-3 per cent. less, while that of St. Johns, the capital of the colony, was 2,000 greater than it is now. The situation is one that should demand attention from the English government.

Mr. Charles H. Aldrich, of the law firm of Aldrich, Payne & Washburn, Chicago, who has been appointed by President Harrison to the important office of solicitor general of the United States, is one of the youngest men who has ever been so honored. Mr. Aldrich went to Chicago from Fort Wayne, Ind., in 1886, and established his present law firm in 1891. For the last year Mr. Aldrich has been assistant to the attorney general, having had charge of the litigation of the United States against the several Pacific railroads and the Western Union Telegraph company. Mr. Aldrich argued a case in Washington in December, and at the close of his argument Attorney General Miller and Solicitor General Taft talked with him, and in the name of the president offered him the position of solicitor general, which is to be vacated by Mr. Taft on February 2. It was a flattering offer, and after some correspondence was accepted.

The women warriors of Dahomey are on the warpath again. No native soldiers of Africa, except the Zulus in their palmy days, have often rivalled the ferocity of the trained women regiments of the king of Dahomey. In the battle 20 days ago before Kutonu, on the coast, 250 Dahomean soldiers, one in eight of them, were left dead on the field after two hours' fighting. From the fact that the French loss was three killed and ten wounded the fight was evidently like those of two years ago, when the warriors charged across the open upon the French works and fell in heaps at the very foot of the wooden forts. The Amazons of Dahomey are taught to scorn danger and to know no pain. The military maneuvers which form a part of their discipline are anything but child's play. According to Major Ellis, these women scramble over heaps of thorny brushwood as high as a house when they are storming an imaginary town, and the first bloody heroine to reach the other side is handsomely rewarded by the king.

Leading plate glass manufacturers in England are expending large sums in improved plants, principally for the finishing processes on plate glass. The rough plates are at present finished by the three separate processes of "grinding," "smoothing" and "polishing," which occupy about three days. Machines have been constructed capable of carrying out the three processes without a single removal of the glass, and of finishing the work in one day instead of three. The special purpose of introducing these machines is to effect the economy necessary to a continued successful competition with the French and Belgian manufacturers.

A London firm is adopting the pneumatic principle of malting. Galland's method, hitherto used by them, although theoretically perfect, was practically defective, and so must every malthouse process be if the air in contact with and drawn through grain carries an excess of moisture. This prevents true withering, and pneumatic malt made under such circumstances would be excessive in hardness. The firm alluded to have adopted the principle of a dual atmosphere, that saturated with moisture being utilized during the early stages of the germination, while the alternative or dry air comes into use while the grain is withering. The future of pneumatic vegetation will probably be far more gratifying than the past, and if competition eventually necessitates the malting of maize the process will probably be carried out in a revolving cylinder. There is no reason why pneumatic maize malt should not be of the most excellent quality if the conditions of vegetation are varied according to artificial requirements.

M. Chavean finds, from recent experiments, that the excitation of one retina by colored light influences, not only the optic nerves of this retina, but also those on the opposite side, so that the latter are able to awaken the sensation of the color employed while the excited retina only sees the complimentary color. Thus, if a white surface be observed for a short time through a bit of colored glass, using only one eye and screening the other, when the glass is taken away the white ground appears to be tinted with a color complimentary to that of the glass.

STRANGE INFATUATION.

Why Miss Mitchell Killed Pretty Freda Ward.

She Would Not Keep Her Promise to Marry Her.

Rational on All Other Subjects, but Evidently Crazy on the Question Which Caused the Terrible Tragedy.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 29.—Alice Mitchell and Lillie Johnston spent last night together in their room at the jail. The father of Lillie also remained in the office of the jail. He is fearful that Alice will do his daughter some bodly harm, and this fear is shared by most of his family.

All efforts to interview Miss Mitchell have failed, but a reporter learned from good authority what passed between her and her counsel. On other subjects she seemed to be perfectly rational and did not realize the enormity of the deed.

"I killed Freda," said she, "because I loved her and she refused to marry me. I asked her to marry me three times, and at last she consented. We were going to marry here and go to St. Louis."

"What did you intend to do in St. Louis?" asked one of her attorneys.

"Oh, I don't know. But when Freda promised to marry me I was so happy. I sent her an engagement ring and she wore it a time, but when it was returned to me I was miserable. I could not bear to be separated from her. I would rather she were dead than away from me."

The girl then asked one of the lawyers where Freda was. She was told that the body was at Steinley & Hinton's.

"Oh, mamma," she said, "if I could only see her. Please let me go to see her. If I could only lie down by her side I would be so happy."

When the permission was refused she broke into a torrent of tears, not for having killed Freda, but for the separation.

The letters that she wrote to Freda are full of the most endearing terms, and go to show that the girl eagerly looked forward to the time when she could make Freda her wife.

Strange to say, from what can be learned, Freda herself seemed to be infatuated with Alice, and willingly assented to the proposed marriage.

The time was fixed, and the affair was to have been in the nature of an elopement.

She does not feel the confinement in jail, but regards it as a school girl would a slight punishment. On other subjects she talks rationally as she does on the killing but for the peculiar views she entertains of the proposed marriage.

The grand jury will investigate the case.

HE CAN REMAIN ABROAD.

Joseph Ashforth Discharged From Court.

The Embezzlement Was Accomplished Before the Recent Treaty Went Into Effect.

London, Jan. 29.—Joseph J. Ashforth, who was arrested for embezzling funds of the Royal Arcanum Building and Loan association, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and who is held for extradition, was brought before the court of queen's bench to-day on a decree nisi calling upon the treasury, the magistrate of the Bow street police court and the Hon. Robert T. Lincoln, minister of the United States, to show cause why a writ of habeas corpus should not issue in his case.

Justices Sir Henry Hawkins and Sir Alfred Wells presided.

Sir Richard Webster, attorney general, and Sir Edward Clarke, solicitor general, both appeared for the crown and argued against the granting of a writ of habeas corpus to release the prisoner.

Lengthy statements were submitted showing that the Bow street magistrate had rightly committed Ashforth to await the result of proceedings for extradition, as applied for by the proper United States authorities.

Sir Edward Clarke contended that the cause was clearly within the present treaty.

Sir Alfred Wills, one of the presiding justices, said that he did not think the point raised by the prisoner in this respect affected the issue.

Sr Richard Webster argued that there was abundant evdence to show that Ashforth's extradition should be granted.

Mr. Poland, for the prisoner, claimed that the evidence was not sufficient to justify the extradition of his client, and that there was nothing in the depositions to prove that the offenses were committed after April, 1890, when the new treaty was adopted, and finally, he claimed that the prosecution relied merely upon accusations contained in a letter.

After further discussion the bench made the habeas corpus absolute, and ordered that the prisoner be discharged. In doing so Justice Hawkins said he was far from intending to state that the prima facie evidence was not sufficient to justify extradition, but he was unable to find a single particle of evidence to prove that the crime was committed after the new treaty went into effect.

SOME NOBLE WOMEN.

The close of the Tilden will case adds another name to the lengthening list of American women whose public benefactions challenge the admiration of the world. Mrs. Hazard's voluntary surrender of two-thirds of her fortune for public purposes, in accordance with what she believes to have been the wish of the founder of the fortune, is done modestly and unpretentiously, but is done with a heartiness and good will that show her to be a rare character. Indeed, her benefaction is quite exceptional in taking place during her lifetime. The rule among the wealthy who wish to build up public institutions is to give their money only after it has ceased to be of use to the givers, but Mrs. Hazard relinquishes a fortune which she might have enjoyed many years.

The names of Laura Hazard, of Elizabeth Coles, of Mary Stuart and of Catherine Wolfe are names which New York may well be proud of, names which succeeding generations will remember with honor.—New York World.

A BAD CROWD.

Rich Hill, Mo., Jan. 29.—Mrs. Charles Lewman shot John Shaw, a miner, with a revolver last night. Shaw is fatally wounded. The husband of Mrs. Lewman was stabbed to death less than a year ago. All parties are disreputable characters.

NOON-DAY MEETING

At Trinity Church—A Talk by Rev. Lindsay Parker.

Another interesting noon-day meeting was held af Trinity church to-day, when Rev. Lindsay Parker, of Brooklyn, N. Y., addressed a large audience of men and a few ladies. These meetings last 20 minutes, beginning promptly at 12 o'clock. Rev. Parker is thoroughly practical, and makes some stirring remarks, which are easily comprehended.

The talk to-day was centered upon the question "What is this life?" and answered, "It is what we will it to be." He remarked that there was something more than the treadmill of a business life, and the worries which make men prematurely old; that there is a realization of the power of a new life if it was sought in the right direction. Cast all meanness, selfishness, ignoble deeds and anything which one's conscience would protest against aside and look to a supreme being, one who is willing to share his life, his nature with you, the incarnate Son of God.

These talks are taking well and will probably become as popular in Toledo as they are east.

They say that he was heard of once after he left Toledo, and was then in Florida, but since that they have lost all trace of him.

BADGE PRESENTATION.

At the reunion yesterday of the Scottish rite Masons Mr. C. E. Armstrong was agreeably surprised by the presentation to him of a magnificent badge.

For nine years he was sovereign master of the Northern Light council, P. of J., and the badge was the first of its kind ever bestowed by this body.

As a piece of workmanship it is exquisite and was made by Michie Bros., Cincinnati.

It consists of a gold bar with the name Clarence E. Armstrong engraved upon it. Suspended from the bar by a delicate gold chain is a piece of gold bearing the regular jewel of the order.

A pair of scales are engraved on the emblem, under which is a dagger, pointing upward.

Between the scales are five diamond stars, on each side of which are the initials D— Z. It is a beautiful design and its worthy recipient is justly proud of it.

CONCORD'S PARTY.

The annual reception of Concord lodge, K. P., was held at the Pythian Castle last night, and was one of the most successful ever held by the lodge. The large number of guests made it rather uncomfortable, but in the general enjoyment this was forgotten. Col. S. A. Court presided over the exercises in the lodge room, which included an address of welcome by I. W. Brake, recitations, songs, etc. Miami division gave its silent drill in a faultless manner, and then followed dancing. The committees in charge of the affair were composed of the following knights:

STABBED WHILE AT PLAY.

Gainesville, Tex., Jan. 29.—Yesterday Will Hodges, 14 years old, was accidentally killed by a companion named Louis Harwood. The boys were playing with their knives while at school and young Hodges was accidentally stabbed, the blade penetrating the breast near the left nipple. He died instantly.

CAPRIVI CHEERED.

He Announces Himself in Favor of the School Bill.

Berlin, Jan. 29.—Chancellor Von Caprivi in the diet to-day said he was in favor of the school bill which was, he added, intended to combat atheism—the greatest danger in the future.

The government, he said, desired peace with the national liberals, but, he added, the latter had attacked the government, and joined the progressists, when they again attacked the government, which, he said, had not shrunk from the attacks of Comers (cheers and counter-cheers).

ANOTHER KENTUCKY WAR.

London, Ky., Jan. 29.—While attending a murder trial at Manchester, Clay county, Wednesday, a general fight occurred between the two factions. When the smoke cleared away, Marion Houk, a brother of the county judge, was found dead, and Joe Hacker was fatally wounded. A courier just in from there says both sides are arming and more serious trouble is expected.

THE CENTRAL LABOR UNION

Disposed of a Grist of Business Last Night.

Linemen Install—Why They Have Joined the Building Trades Organization — Secretary Murphy's Report.

The regular meeting of the Central Labor union was held last eveging, and a very interesting session it was. The following delegates were duly admitted: Machinists, No. 105, R. H. Hopkins, L. Salkalb, J. A. McMichael and E. Rhenass; Machinists No. 11, Otis Taft, R. L. Gorley; Bakers', No. 66, James Lattea; Cigarmakers', No. 48, John Steinmaszak; Printing Pressmen, George Heyman; Brewers', No. 66, John Lok.

The following new legislative committee was appointed by President Booth:

A. A. Reilly, chairman; L. F. Hollinger, S. F. Strutt, C. A. Russell, A. S. Carpenter, Charles F. Chapman, Frank Went, J. W. Snyder, Percy Byron, Edward Rydman, Gustave Zimmerman, F. Rhoner, jr., Fred Abrnes, F. J. Carr, J. A. McMichael, George B'sch, Joseph Overbeck, Jos. Threin, William Bundenthal, Reynold Voit, G. W. Dawson, John Freudenthal, P. H. Preston, Joseph Schofield, A. Smith, R. J. Roth, R. F. Booth.

New business was transacted as follows: The tailors label approved; consolidation of blacksmiths and blacksmith's helpers reported; meeting of coopers called for Carpenter's hall Sunday afternoon at 2 p. m., and of boiler workers at the same hall at 3 p. m. All persons working at these two trades are invited to be present, whether members of unions or not.

Perhaps the most important business of the meeting was the report upon the bakers strike and action thereon. Resolutions were adopted endorsing the action of the bakers' union, and a committee was appointed to represent the Central Labor union in the effort to adjust the trouble, the committee being: C. H. Terwilliger, Henry Strochlein and August Zimmerman.

The Linemen's Meeting.

At the meeting of the Linemen's union in Mulcahey's hall, the following officers elected at the last meeting were installed in office: President, M. J. Donoher; vice president, John Abbott; corresponding and financial secretary, John J. Carr; financial secretary, James Carney; treasurer, F. J. Heinzelman; inspector, Peter Ahrens.

The union is now working under the charter issued by the National Brotherhood of Electric Workers, and has thereby become a part of a very strong organization.

The union having decided to send representatives to the Building Trades council instead of the Central Labor union, elected the following delegates to the first named: John J. Carr, Daniel Gosline, James Carney, Thomas Nevitt, June Smith, Joseph Detzer.

Some surprise has been expressed at this change, but to a Bee this morning a prominent member of the union gave a very reasonable explanation of it as follows:

The interests of the line men are identical with those of all other trades engaged in the building industry. There is not a building of any size put up in these days, but what electrical appliances in some form are introduced, electric bells, incandescent lighting, batteries, etc. It is at once apparent that whatever central organization regulates union employment on buildings, that is the natural place for the linemen to be represented. As much as masons or plasterers, they belong to the Building Trades council. In fact, they have already lost several desirable contracts because they were not affiliated with that body, as from this time on they will be.

After some discussion it was decided to admit trimmers to the linemen's union, using a separate initiation, and granting separate cards.

Free Employment Bureau.

The following is Superintendent Murphy's report for the week ending January 27: Situations wanted, males, 50; females, 35; help wanted, males, 10; females, 51; situations procured, males 9; females, 25.

IN TRADING CIRCLES

Both at Our Home and Abroad.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles

London wheat quiet. No corn offering. Liverpool wheat steady; corn easy.

Liverpool received in past six days 524,000 bu wheat of which 321,000 was American, and 492,500 bu of corn.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal points to-day are 366,479 bu, compared with 195,529 bu on the same day last year.

Wheat has ruled about steady to-day, and very dull. The first news of consequence after the rather lower public and private cables was the report of the commissioner of agriculture of North Dakota, making the wheat crop of that state 65,000,000 bu., or 13,000,000 more than the government estimate. The trading both here and at the larger markets was confined chiefly to the room traders, excepting New York, which reported light selling by foreigners. Chicago purchases were chiefly against puts.

Closing cables report wheat futures dull, 1-4@1-2d lower. Corn, 1-4@1-2d lower. Paris, wheat 20c lower; flour 30@40c lower. Liverpool, spot wheat very dull, 1-2d lower. Exports from four ports, including 75,781 bbls. of flour, were 443,000 bu.

Cash wheat opened at 91 3-4 and sold up to 92, closing at 92; May opened at 96, sold to 96 1-4, then to 95 1-8, closing at that; July sales at 92 1-4; No. 3 soft sales at 90; No. 2 white at 91.

Corn firm with demand good. Sales include No. 2 at 40 and 39 3-4; No. 2 yellow at 39 3-4 and 40; No. 2 white at 41; No. 4 at 38 and May at 42 1-4.

Oats are firm. We quote No. 2 at 33; 2 white at 34, and May at 32 1-2 bid, 32 3-4 asked.

Rye half a cent lower at 84 1-2 for No. 2 and 81 1-2 for No. 3.

Clover market firm at yesterday's prices, notwithstanding the heavy receipts. The offerings all taken at full prices. Prime sales at $5 70 and No. 2, $5 35@5 50. Futures quiet and include March early at $5 72 1-2 and later at $5 70, and March at $5 70.

Dressed hogs steady at $5 50 for mixed weights.

In New York January wheat closes 1-8c higher and 1-4c lower. January corn 1-4c lower and May unchanged. January oats 1-8c higher.

In Chicago May wheat closed 1-2c lower at 91c. May corn 3-8c lower at 41c and May oats 3-8c lower at 30 1-8c.

Mr. Griffin declares he is not a ripper. Indeed, he says he is preparing an eloquent speech against such politics.

The only persons interested in the refunding scheme are the contractors who compelled the gas trustees to award the contracts at enormous prices.

The Boston Herald is unwavering in its assurance and strong in its fidelity. It says: "We have an abiding faith that Grover Cleveland is not the man to retire from the field when so much depends upon his remaining firmly in it."

The Boston Journal claims to oppose the admission of New Mexico to statehood because its population is largely "un-American." Its population is largely men who vote the democratic ticket, and that is the Journal's real ground of objection. Only that, and nothing more.

When a high-tax advocate wants to impress laboring people with the benefits to them of the tariff, it straighway compares their condition with the pauper labor of free-trade England, when everybody knows the destitute laborers that flock to our own lands, come from countries which "enjoy the benefits of the protective tariff."

The organs which go on comparing wages of workingmen in England and America still refuse to put along with such calculation the purchasing power of the dollar in both instances. They will get behind their readers who are attending the lectures on political economy in the University Extension course, and who are learning for themselves these foundation principles.

Like the coal barons of Pennsylvania, the Western and Southern lumbermen protest against free lumber, as it would chiefly benefit New England. McKinleyism, from top to bottom, amounts to a conspiracy to keep New England out in the cold.—Boston Globe.

Time was, not so long ago, when New England was the strong hold of the party for which McKinleyism is now a sole issue. ThatNew England people begin to realize how they have been rewarded for giving solid republican majorities, the elections in Massachusetts the last two years demonstrate.

Our neighbor discussing reciprocity, says: "foreign countries, benefited should make reciprocal concessions, notwithstanding the fact that the abolition of the import duty on the article in question is a boon to the American people." And to fortify his position it is remarked in another column "the people are relieved of $60,000,000 taxation (sugar) by the removal of duties by a republican legislature." It may tell an inquirer to-morrow that "the tariff has no more to do with prices than it has with the rainfall." But by these presents, the campaign of education goes bravely on.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Prof. Moses Coit-Tyler, formerly of Ann Arbor University, now of Cornell, is delivering a series of lectures before the University Extension class in Syracuse, N. Y. The subject of his last was "The Naming of the Nation," a topic which has been discussed at various periods. The "United States" is not a name; neither can we lay claim, exclusively, to the title, "Americans." If we had named our country "Columbia," we would be Columbians all right, but it was left for a little republic of South America to appropriate that title. Since the continent of America has developed other republics, which are growing in strength and greatness, we are no longer "the" United States. And although Prof. Tyler thinks the title "American" has grown to us, and must be accepted, one is reminded when he is abroad that the foreigner has not the same idea. Tell a Scotchman or a Frenchman you are an American, and he will ask you, "Canada or the States?" Canadians in the old world are fond of calling themselves by the title that we purpose to make ours distinctively. It has been said that they do not take it grievously if they were mistaken for "States" people. You may chance to meet an East-Indian Englishman, or South-African Frenchman who, being told one is an American, will say, "North, or South?" It is a pity we haven't a name, as a nation, that can be made into a patriotic adjectve. With all the wealth of our Indian nomenclature at our disposal, we have made poor work with names, first and last. The west with its aboriginal and Spanish music has the best claim to good taste and foresight in this respect.

There has been a recurrence of grip in this country this winter. A great many people have been seriously ill with it, and a great many more persons, who have been ladisposed, have imagined they had it. But the sickness with us has been as nothing compared to the prevalence and fatality of the epidemic across the water. A recent issue of the London Times contained 157 death notices, and in one week over 500 grip victims were buried in that city, a greater number than ever in the same period except when plague prevailed. In Paris last week there were 300 funerals on Monday, 380 on Tuesday, 370 on Wednesday and 403 on Thursday.

It was a tragic scene in a Jersey City court room when Judge Manning M. Knapp, of the supreme court of the state, fell dead in his chair while uttering denunciations against the gambling crimes of the notorious Guttenburg race course and sporting grounds. A jurist for seventeen years and a man of high character and attainments he fell at his post. There is little doubt but his death was due to intense excitement and indignation. Judge Knapp was a prominent democrat and a distinguished astronomer, his study of the science being his one recreation. He was 68 years old.

Colonel Ingersoll is reported to have said in his speech at the police captains' dinner in New York that there was no more reason for a free press than that policemen should be allowed free use of the club. For a long time it has been discernable that the free-mouthed orator was a poseur, but this remark shows unsuspected charlatanism in the man. Who would have anticipated Robert Ingersoll and Anthony Comstock were of the same mind?

It is said Judge Holman has two favorite exclamations which he uses when things are not going to suit him. One is "Oh, my! my!" and the other, "This will never do; oh, my, this will never do!" The latter exclamation, the New York World says, "invariably gives log-rollers a spasm of pain." It is likely they will find themselves in a condition of chronic colic during the present congressional session.

"It seems strange," says the New York Sun. "and undoubtedly it is strange," the Sun continues, "that a republican has not been elected to congress from this city in twelve years." To an outsider there are more wonderful things than this in New York city politics, and the most marvelous of all is the claim of Editor Dana that his Sun is a democratic paper.

The New York Telegram calls Brooklyn "a place where the bacillus of meditation is sedulously cultivated." There might be germs of much more dangerous diseases floating around, and there is general suspicion that microscopical investigation of New York city air would disclose some of them.

Toledoans who sit comfortably in their warmed cars and unfold their morning papers read that "straw has been prohibited in the Boston street cars" because it is a harbor for uncleanliness and, therefore, unhealthfulness. The Philadelphia Press hopes that its own city will one day catch up with Boston in this degree of enlightenment.

The New York Telegram shows a small and spiteful spirit in predicting that the delegates to the democratic convention will suffer from hot weather in Chicago. No one ever yet suffocated from heat in Chicago in June, on the south side of the city, where the convention will, of course, be held.

The doctors want to break into the cabinet now. Their demand is for a Secretary of Public Health. Well, if we had one under this administration he could issue daily bulletins concerning the Secretary of State's health, and they would be official—perhaps.

The report from Washington that President Harrison soundly snubbed Andrew Carnegie leads the Chicago Times to moralize as follows: "That is what Mr. Carnegie gets for thinking one small keg of Scotch whisky will last forever."

Did the several hundred thousand names of wives, mothers and sweethearts sent up to Washington, petitioning for peace have anything to do with it? Except heaven heard their prayers and moved invisibly on the Chilean heart, they are not to be counted "in."

The committee of the New York Assembly of the Presbyterian church and the Directors of Union Theological Seminary agree to disagree until the next session of the General Assembly shall take the matter in hand again.

When you see the head-line "Baby McKee brings $25,000," don't think for an instant the grandchild of the administration has been put up for a price. It is a young trotting horse of Senator Stanford's Palo Alto farm that was bidden for at auction.

Mrs. Morton, the wife of the vice president, will plan for the erection of a hospital for contagious diseases. As it will be located in Washington it may be necessary to explain that office-seeking is not on the list that can gain entrance.

Kaiser Wilhelm in the role of reformer is compared to Mrs. Partington, sweeping back the ocean with her broom. A comparison of the German emperor to one King Canute is also not inapt.

The republican club of Boston have chosen "Simpkins and victory" for a slogan, and somehow, every time they yell, everybody snickers. It is not an inspiring combination.

The labor organizations of New York state join with the state leaders of the democratic party in insisting that a convention to revise the state constitution is necessary.

THE FINE ART OF FINANCE.

Respectfully Inscribed to Alderman Macomber.

To the Editor—When a master in the art of finances, a former banker of most phenomenal success, and one who, but for the envy of smaller men, would today be at the head of several banks, when such a genius attempts to instruct us in finances the rest of us can do no more than stand hat in hand and listen, or read, mark and inwardly digest.

I refer in these seemingly cold terms to the able article by Alderman Macomber in last Monday's paper. It begins, you know, "I have prepared," and further along he says "I have deduced." I always admired a man who could "deduce." I have occasionally tried to do it, but I always had to cross it out. But Alderman Macomber "deduces" with the ability of a Senor Montt. Let us see what he "deduces:"

Receipts for gas for an average period of four months, $96,000.

Now let us see what President Parsons "deduces," though he is not yet up to using that Bostonese word. He says the city line is supplying to customers 12,000,000 feet of gas per day. At 8c per thousand feet this is $960 per day; we may "deduce" 30 days to the month, or $28,800 per month, and "an average period of four months" would make this $115,200.

Somehow the two sets of figures do not seem to "deduce," but let us go on.

Alderman Macomber, financial expert, "deduces" farther that when there are twice as many consumers on the city line as there now are there will be 12,000. That with these Toledo will then derive a revenue of 30 to 40 per cent. per annum on an investment of $1,250,000. Suppose we "deduce" that it will be only 30 per cent. That means $375,000. Just see how easy Financier Macomber figures this: the net income from 6,000 consumers for 4 months is $83,000. Double the number of consumers and you double the net income, making it for "an average period of 4 months" $166,000. Instead of charging for heating stoves only six months of the twelve, as the octopus does, charge for eight months, making $332,000, and the cook stoves and schools during the rest of the hot summer will make up the paltry sum of $43,000, and there you are!

Isn't it pretty? Isn't it convincing?

Financier Macomber omitted, while he was "deducing" to add the usual formula:

Quod erat demonstrandum.

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION.

To-Night the Lecture is Upon Changes in Political Economy Since Mill.

Professor Henry C. Adams will be with us again this evening, and deliver his lecture on "Changes in Political Economy Since Mill," at the High School hall. In some respects this is the most valuable and interesting one in these series of lectures, and undoubtedly the hall will again be filled to its capacity. The syllabus of the lecture is as follows:

Changes in Political Economy Since Mill. (A) Fundamental Conceptions.

1. John Stuart Mill is the most perfect expositor of English political economy. (a) Adam Smith. (b) Malthus. (c) Ricardo. (d) Mill.

2. The historical method has superseded the a priori method of investigation. (a) Historical explanation of the a priori method. (b) Real meaning of the historical method. (c) Outlook for political economy under the historical method.

3. The restrictive theory has given place to the expansive theory with regard to governmental functions. (a) Historical explanation of the restrictive theory of government. (b) Historical explanation of the rise of more liberal ideas respecting government. (c) Analysis of the doctrine of laissez-faire. (d) Principles limiting governmental functions.

As the study hour, which is of great value to those who avail themselves of it, follows the lecture, it is very desirable the lecture should begin promptly at the appointed time, which is 7:45 sharp. Late arrivals at the two preceding lectures have delayed the opening.

THE BRONSON WILL.

Proceedings Entered to Break the Instrument.

Papers in the suit to contest the will of the late Calvin Bronson were filed in common pleas court. The action is brought by Agatha E. Messinger, Aletta Bronson Warn and Zorah Isadore Warn against Roswell E. Messinger, Charles R. Messinger, Isabel Bronson Barber, Agatha E. Messinger, Susie Granger, David Bronson and Henry G. Neubert.

The will that is being contested bears date of January 10, 1891, January 15, 1891 and September 12, 1891. The grounds of the contest are that this is not the last will and testament of the said Calvin S. Bronson, but said Calvin Bronson at the dates of said will was not of sound mind and memory, and was mentally incapacitated from making a will or proper or legal distribution of his property and that he was induced by undue influences, by persons to plaintiffs unknown, to make and execute said pretended will.

The plaintiffs also say that Charles Ruel Messinger is a minor and asks the court to appoint a guardian ad litem for him, and ask that the said will be set aside.

OBERLIN COLLEGE.

President Ballantine's Annual Report—Needs of the Institution.

Oberlin, O., Jan. 29.—President Ballantine delivered the annual report at the meeting of the college trustees.

It was full of interest as showing the great development of the college during the year and in holding forth some of the most pressing needs.

The faculty has been greatly enlarged and a greater body of students are now on the ground than ever before. Many new courses have been opened up and the bequests of the year are greater than those of any other year in the history of the college.

Conspicuous among these is the endowment of $50,000 for a scientific chair, to be occupied by Professor G. E. Wright, the eminent specialist, by philanthropic friends and alumni of the college in Cleveland. There is a strong movement on foot among the various alumni associations towards endowing several chairs, particularly in the natural sciences. The time is fast approaching when new gymnasiums, new and larger buildings for the scientific departments, must be had to accommodate the pressing needs of a rapidly growing university.

A new dormitory for young ladies is to be begun in the spring and a tract of forest is purchased for a botanical garden and will be improved as soon as possible. The outlook is, on the whole, very bright.

HE WAS A FRAUD.

Another Slick Man Making Money on His Wits.

Wapakoneta, O., Jan. 29.—(Special)—A neat swindle just came to light. The other day a man was at Findlay representing that he was from this city, and that he was the secretary of the Wapakoneta Building and Loan association, and that the company had about $20,000 to $30,000 to loan on good mortgage loans. He demanded an advance fee of $2 to $10 according to the amount from each applicant. The attorney who made his first abstract, after waiting a sufficient time for an acknowledgment of its receipt, became impatient, and sent a man to investigate the matter, when the fraud was discovered.

ANOTHER WATER FAMINE.

Chicago Had Trouble with Her Pumps.

The Chambers Filled with Solid Ice and Not a Drop of Water Could be Drawn Through.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—The waterworks of this city were in trouble again yesterday, and there is still danger of another water famine. Few people know how near they were to famine a second time within a week, as diligent efforts were made to keep the facts within the walls of the city hall.

The situation was equally as serious as it was a week ago. The supply of water was entirely cut off from one of the tunnels for hours at a time. The clogging of another had begun, but the Herculean efforts of 15 or 20 men finally prevailed and the channel was cleared.

A diminished supply at the faucets of down town buildings at times during the day suggested that something was wrong at the crib or at the pumping stations.

The trouble proved to be at the East Chicago avenue pumping station. The pumps began to pound about 7 o'clock yesterday morning and the engineer shut down. He found the chamber below the Holley engine apparently full of solid ice.

There was nothing to do but remove one of the ends of the chamber beneath the cylinder of the pump. This was a long and tedious task. The chamber was found packed full of ice, and quite as solid as though it had been frozen for commercial purposes. Not a drop of water could get through it.

Had the pumps been allowed to run a moment longer the results would have been disastrous.

NAME AND TITLES.

Senator Frye is a typical Yankee, writes Frank Carpenter in the Boston Globe, but with it all there is no broader guage man in the union.

He was 12 years in the house of representatives before he came to the senate, and had made a reputation there as a bold and fearless leader. When Blaine was made Garfield's secretary of state he was elected to take his place in the senate.

There is nothing snobbish about Frye, and he would just as lief be called "Bill" by his constituents as Senator Frye. He tells a story of himself when he was attorney-general, which illustrates the saying that the Senator is not without honor save in his own country.

He was attorney-general of Maine at this time, and was going from the capitol to his home.

Said he: "As I walked down the steps of the state house I met a man who accosted me with 'Good morning, General.' 'Good morning, sir,' said I. When I got on the train another acquaintance spoke to me and said: 'Good morning, Major.' 'Good morning, sir,' I answered.

"At the next station I met another friend, who addressed me with 'Good morning, Colonel,' and I replied, 'Good morning, sir.'

"The next man greeted me with 'Good morning, Mr. Frye,' and I replied: 'Good morning, sir.' I had received so many titles, however, in the course of an hour that I hardly knew which was the right one until, as I was going up the street to my home, a man met me who yelled out the same greeting that he had given me in my college days, and shouted: 'How are yer, Bill?' and I suppose that was the best one."

ABOUT KID GLOVES.

The Town from Whence Most of These Coverings Come.

A town called Grenoble is the place where most kid gloves come from; yet of the 20,000 or more tourists who pass through the capital of the Isere department each year not more than 10 ever go out of their way to learn something about this great national industry, says a writer in the New York Recorder. For it is national, as France holds the chief position in the world in this line of commerce, and wherever you go you are sure to find that the best gloves are of French manufacture. This success is not due to a question of taste only, but to excellence of workmanship also.

There is nothing mechanical about glove-making. It is all hand labor; therefore experienced and skilled operatives are necessary to produce good merchandise. But, as Frenchmen do not like to leave their homes, it is the Belgians, the Germans and the Italians who go abroad and devote themselves to the production of an inferior kind of goods for toilet purposes in other countries.

At Grenoble alone 1,200,000 dozen pairs of gloves are manufactered annually. This represents a value of $7,000,000 to $7,200,000, and this gives employment to 25,000 workpeople of both sexes. There are 4,000 men and 21,000 women residing in a rayon of 38 miles around Grenoble who live by this work. Glovemaking, then, is interesting from a social point of view, as is one of the few callings open to female labor in which they can earn respectable wages without abandoning husbands, homes and little ones.

When I add that out of $7,200,000 worth of gloves made in that region at least $3,000,000 are distributed in wages among an almost infinite number of families, you can imagine the anxiety with which recent parliamentary deliberations over the proposition to franchise the raw material were awaited by the population. A tax on skins brought into France would have meant ruin to many hard working people who get a comfortable living out of the industry.

FOR THE TOILET

There is no more useful or elegant article than Ayer's Hair Vigor—the most popular and economical hair-dressing in the market. It causes the hair to grow abundantly and retain the beauty and texture of youth; prevents baldness, heals troublesome humors of the scalp and keeps it clean, cool, and healthy. Both ladies and gentlemen everywhere prefer Ayer's Hair Vigor to any other dressing for the hair. Mrs. Lydia O. E. Pittston, Moody, writes: "I Ask For Ayer's Hair Vigor for some time, and it has worked wonders for me. I was troubled with dandruff and falling hair, so that I was rapidly becoming bald; but since using the Vigor, my head is perfectly clear of dandruff, the hair has ceased coming out, and I now have a good growth, of the same color as when I was a young woman. I can heartily recommend the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor to any one suffering from dandruff or loss of hair."

AMPLY CONFIRMED.

EUROPEAN IDEAS VERIFIED IN AMERICA.

The Most Important Subject of the Present Day Settled Beyond Question.

The cable dispatches which recently appeared in the daily papers indicating the great interest felt throughout Europe upon a subject of international interest have naturally awakened great attention, not to say excitement, in this city and throughout the land. It is a well-known fact that the demands of modern life have caused a strain which seems to shorten life and undermine health universally. The efforts made abroad to investigate its cause are most commendable, and we are pleased to say have been supplemented by similar efforts in America. Careful inquiry has been made among prominent physicians, and it is surprising what uniformity of opinion is expressed by them all. That opinion seems to be that the great modern disease is kidney trouble, and that the kidneys are the first organs of the body to be attacked by over-exertion or over-indulgence, and the first to become weakened by the grip. That this is a most lamentable fact there can be no doubt, but that these troubles can be prevented and cured the investigations made abroad clearly show. In the interest of humanity we have made similar investigations, and the result is given herewith.

Dr. N. S. Davis said: "People do not know what Bright's disease is. The term is applied popularly to every trouble that even remotely affects the kidneys. There are two forms of the trouble—one an enlargement and the other a shrinking of the kidneys."

Dr. Frank T. Andrews says: "The term Bright's disease covers a great many complaints. In fact, any case of albuminaria, is called Bright's disease. The majority of these cases are curable. The reason a man dies of kidney trouble is the inability of the organ to perform its functions."

Dr. S. Clarke declares: "There was a time when any man or woman suffering from any form of kidney trouble had cause for despair. That time has passed. For the past eight years I have treated every variety of kidney trouble in both men and women, and I do not believe there is a case so severe, no matter of how long standing, that it cannot be relieved or cured by the careful and conscientious use of Warner's Safe Cure."

Dr. Charles W. Purdy says: "There are many diseases grouped under the head of Bright's disease of the kidneys. One of the most serious forms is almost always accompanied by heart trouble, which frequently causes the death of the patient. The acute form will kill the patient within a few years unless he receives proper treatment."

Dr. R. A. Gunn, dean of the United States Medical college, declares: "For years the treatment of Bright's disease has been largely experimental. I am independent enough and frank enough to commend most heartily that great remedy —Warner's Safe Cure."

Dr. A. B. Hosmer affirms: "Acute Bright's disease in children is curable. The kidneys, you see, are waste gates, and when they are partially closed trouble must result."

Dr. Tyre York, of Washington, D. C., asserts: "I think Warner's Safe Cure a great blessing to mankind, and if taken regularly will cure almost any disease of the kidneys. I prescribe it in my practice."

Dr. C. Washington Earle, of Chicago, says: "Diseases of the kidneys may be slight or aggravated. The object to be attained is to limit the overworked and wornout organs to as little exercise as possible."

Dr. John W. Mapes, of Paris, Ill., says: "I am a living example of the virtues of Warner's Safe Cure, without which I should long since have been dead.'

Throughout the land, wherever investigation has been made, the sentiment seems to be the same.

The above unquestioned and unquestionable testimony proves beyond a doubt what Mr. H. H. Warner, of Rochester, N. Y., boldly declared more than ten years ago, namely, that Bright's disease of the kidneys can be cured. Mr. Warner knew whereof he affirmed, for he himself had been cured of Bright's disease in its worst form. If any reader has peculiar pains, strange sensations, or unaccountable feelings, which far too often announce the coming on of kidney trouble, there is no need to despond; there is every reason for hope. A cure has been found and proven beyond question or the possibility of doubt.

COAL AND ICE.

THE LOST—(AT LAST!)—CHORD.

Seated one day in my study,
I was anxious and ill at ease,
And I tapped at the window wildly
And rattled a bunch of keys;
Unless I could manage to scare him,
All hope of repose was floored,
For borne like a wail on an easterly gale
I heard that dread "Lost Chord!"

I made ambiguous signals
That I wanted the tune to cease,
For I had work to finish,
And he was a foe to peace
But the grinder only answered
With a fixed demoniac grin,
And steadily turned the handle,
And poured his distracting din.

I know not of what he was dreaming
As softly I stole aside,
And thoughtfully lifted a scuttle of coals,
And opened the window wide;
Though I judge from his satisfied simper
That his dreams were of anything but
Of a blackened mound and a muffled sound
And a window suddenly shut.

It may be they'll take the pieces
To his far Italian home,
And carve from his bones Mosaical stones
To pave St. Peter's at Rome;
Or if they don't—it's the same to me,
But this I'm prepared to maintain:
That the "Chord" he started to play is lost,
And will never be found again.

SIMEONI'S SUCCESSOR.

Ledochawski a Bitter Enemy to Germany.

Bismarck Once Sentenced Him to Prison.

New Complications Which Are of Great Interest to the Catholics Throughout the Entire Country.

London, Jan. 29.—The Times to-day publishes a long dispatch from its Paris correspondent relative to the appointment by the pope of Cardinal Ledochowski to succeed the late Cardinal Simeoni as prefect of the congregation of the propaganda fide.

The correspondent, who is in a position to speak knowingly of the matter, says he regards the appointment as a most significant act, and that it brings Cardinal Ledochowski to the attentive observation of diplomats.

The correspondent says that the group of which the cardinal is the head aims at the preservation of Italian unity, but with concessions guaranteeing the absolute liberty of the pope and the cession of Rome to the vatican by Italy.

Cardinal Ledochowski was for a time friendly towards the German government. He was an intimate friend of the late Empress Augusta of Germany. Subsequently events occurred which led him to change his attitude toward the government, and he became one of its most bitter adversaries.

He incurred the hostility of Prince Bismarck, and the result was that he was sentenced to several years' imprisonment. He was after a time allowed to escape, and has since resided in Rome. The German government, it is said, is now trying to court him in order to get him to accept the policy of the emperor and to have him as an ally near the pope.

But thus far his sentiment against Germany is unappeasable, and the negotiations with him have no present chance of success. Had he been appointed prefect of the propaganda fide during Bismarck's time it would have been an act of defiance toward Germany. Bismarck regarded Cardinal Ledochowski as his personal enemy. His residence at the vatican was the chief difficulty met with by Herr Von Schlosser, the German ambassador to the vatican, in attempting to carry out the mission with which he was intrusted.

Bismarck was convinced that Cardinal Ledochowski was constantly with the pope advising him to resist the German overtures and dictating replies to the German communications. The imperative part of Herr Von Schlosser's mission was to induce the pope to part with Cardinal Ledochowski. This course Herr Von Schlosser urged upon the pope, but His Holiness always replied that Prince Bismarck was ill-informed of the position occupied by Cardinal Ledochowski. The pope said:

"I seldom see Cardinal Ledochowski. He advises me only when he is asked to do so. Prince Bismarck combats Cardinal Ledochowski as his personal adversary, rather than as an adversary of his cause. For this petty satisfaction Prince Bismarck wishes me to give the world the spectacle of a pope who humiliates himself. How could I withdraw my hospitality from a prince of the church who is seeking refugee?"

Apart from the pope, Cardinal Ledochowski wields great influence at the vatican. To illustrate the position of Cardinal Ledochowski at the vatican, the Times correspondent cites an incident that occurred to a friend of his. This friend, during the year 1883, was holding an animated conversation with Cardinal Jacobini. The friend stated that at the liveliest point of the conversation, when Cardinal Jacobini was intensely interested, the chamberlain suddenly entered the room and announced: "The cardinal." Cardinal Jacobini immediately arose from his seat and conducted the gentleman he had been conversing with to the door of the ante-room, where was standing Cardinal Ledochowski. He, according to the friend's language, was a man of haughty and imposing demeanor. When Cardinal Jacobini saw him he (Jacobini) made a very deep bow. The delay in receiving him after he had been announced was exceedingly short, but Cardinal Ledochowski seemed to be surprised that he had to wait for an instant. Since that time the influence of Cardinal Ledochowski has greatly increased. Every effort made by Germany since Bismarck's fall to win the cardinal to her side has been without success.

His appointment is designed to end the difficulty with Germany by linking him to the vatican, and by sinking his Polish nationality. The pope, also, in ignoring the Italian candidates for the position, wishes to make a step in the direction of internationalizing the vatican dignities. The correspondence concludes by saying that the appointment of Cardinal Ledochowski will be a warning to Italy.

STIMULATE THE BLOOD.

Brandreth's Pills are the great blood purifier. They are a purgative and blood tonic, they act equally on the bowels, the kidneys, and the skin, thus cleansing the system by the natural outlet of the body—they may be called the purgative sudorific and diuretic medicine. They stimulate the blood so as to enable nature to throw off all morbid humors, and cure disease no matter by what name it may be called. One or two of them taken every night will prove an infallible remedy.

FIRE LIMITS.

New Boundary Fixed by the Council Committee.

Fire Department Affairs—Some Street Improvements—Other Council Business.

Several council committees held meetings last evening, and some new legislation was started.

The most important was the fire committee and this meeting was attended by Commissioners Richardson and Mensing and Chief Wall.

The first topic discussed was the ordinance fixing the fire limits of the city, and Chief Wall presented for the commissioners a new fire limit line, which after a short discussion was adopted with but trifling changes.

This new fire limit boundary line commences at Magnolia street about 100 feet from the dock line along the river to the Perry street bridge, along Ottawa street to Hall street, Hall to Wade, Wade to Swan creek, Swan creek to the Clover Leaf Track, along this track to Washington street, Washington to Michigan, Michigan to within 150 feet of Adams, both sides of Adams street out as far as Warren, back to Michigan and along Michigan to Cherry, both sides of Cherry out as far as Bancroft, back to the alley west of Summit, along this alley to Magnolia, to the place of beginning.

On the East Side the fire limits extend from Oak street to the river, along the river to Platt street, Platt to First street, First street to Bridge street, both sides of Bridge street as far as Sixth, back to First street and along First street to Oak.

A resolution was adopted asking Manager Lang, of the Consolidated, to furnish firemen in uniform free transportation along his lines of street railway.

Fire Commissioner Richardson brought up the matter of a fire marshal. About a year ago the fire commissioners presented to the council a bill for the legislature creating the office of a fire marshal, whose duties shall be to look after all buildings, especially those under construction within the fire limits. On the previous occasion this bill failed of approval in the council. Last night, however, after a careful discussion of the matter in which the fire commissioners explained fully the needs of such an officer, the bill was approved by the committee and will be recommended by the council.

The commissioners then made an effort to have the committee take some action on the matter of increasing the fire department, but after reasons had been presented to them they desired more time to consider and laid the matter over.

The sewer committee received two protests against sewer assessments. These were for the sewer between Nebraska avenue and Tecumseh street and the sewer between Vance and Forrer streets. The protests were referred to Messrs. Walker, Schumhl and Huberick for further investigation.

* * * * *

The committees on police, parks and claims each audited a schedule of bills.

* * * *

The street committee held considerable discussion over the proposition to condemn property and widen Islington street, making it 60 feet wide. This would necessitate condemning a 30-foot strip of land belonging to George Boyer. The owners of Brandon Heights, who desire to have the street widened, agree to pay all expense incurred, but Mr. Boyer objects to giving up his property. The committee will meet on the street at 4 o'clock this afternoon and further investigate the matter.

Attorney James H. Southard, acting for other bidders, entered a protest against awarding the contract for grading Dawson street to W. T. Ryan, on the grounds of Mr. Ryan's bid having been improperly drawn up. The committee, however, decided that Mr. Ryan's bid was legal and took no action.

P. H. Degnan was granted permission to erect scales in Water street.

Resolutions were adopted for turnpiking Enright, Pomeroy, Doyle and Brigham streets from Comstock street to Ketcham avenue, all in Glassboro addition.

Resolutions were approved to grade Third street, from Oak to Clark; Clark street from Woodville to Third; and Utah street from First to Woodville, all in East Toledo.

The street commissioner was instructed to remove obstructions from the alley between Buffalo and Ash streets from Michigan street to the old canal bed.

An ordinance was approved to grade the alley between Cherry and Orange streets, from Ontario to Dove Lane.

MITCHELL IS TALKING AGAIN.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 29.—Fred Gallagher, associate editor of the London Sporting Life, is authority for the statement that Charlie Mitchell yesterday wired the California Athletic club, San Francisco: "I will fight John L. Sullivan to a finish in a 16-foot ring, the club offering a purse, and I will bet him on the outside $5,000 that I lick him."

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

AFTER THE GRIPPE.

The Grippe Responsible for More Deaths after Recovery than During its Course—How to Avoid the Danger.

Grippe, in itself, is bad enough, debilitating enough, but it is the after effects, the slowness of recovery that give it its great danger. In most cases, the person did not have sufficient vitality to rally after the disease itself had passed. The forces of nature were too weak to contend with the debility which the Grippe had left.

It is sad to think how many people have died who might have been saved if nature had been properly assisted and fortified after the Grippe had been driven from the system. Many physicians realized this fact and assisted their patients over the dangerous after effects by bracing up and stimulating their systems. This was, and can be done in but one way, and that is by the steady and moderate use of some pure yet powerful stimulant. There is but one absolutely pure and medicinal stimulant known to the profession and to the public, and that is Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. The most prominent scientists and physicians of the land endorse its purity and value. It is not a new whiskey, it has been before the public for years. It is not a cheap decoction, but a pure distillation. It imparts a tone to the system possible in no other manner and sends the blood coursing through the veins with renewed vigor. It is superior in every respect and however much any unscrupulous druggist or grocer may seek to lead you to believe to the contrary do not be deceived.

BOOKS OF THE MONTH

And Magazines for February Fresh from the Press.

A Prose Idyl—Authorized Drill Rules—Egypt and Assyria—Dogs and Horses—Science Series.

A prose idyl is "Miserere," written by Mabel Wagnalls and published by the Funk & Wagnalls company, New York. It is artistically bound in gold, blue and whit and embellished with four full-page, half-tone engravings. The plot of the sketch is simple and the charm of its weaving is in the classic purity of the language employed. An impressionable young music lover chances to get locked in a cathedral in Verona, and is surprised and delighted with the singing of the organist who comes in to practice and who drifts away into song like one inspired. She is a nun, by her garb, and when other nuns come later, for chorus rehearsals, she is absorbed in her organ practice. The voice was wonderful and the listener hoped and planned to hear it again but failed. Later, in Vienna, the music-lover made the acquaintance of a congenial musician who had a secret sorrow. Its connection with the lovely nun of the cathedral, and the tragic end of it all is the motif of the story. It is a pathetic and graceful bit of literary work that merits the highest commendation. The author is a young New York girl, studying music in Berlin, where she lately made a brilliant debut as a pianiste. She is certainly gifted in many ways and her future is bright with promise.

A neat little manual, "Infantry Drill Regulations, United States Army" (adopted Oct. 3, 1891), is published by D. Appleton & Co., New York, at the instance of Secretary of War Proctor. Its purpose is to insure uniformity throughout the army, and to this end "all infantry exercises and maneuvers not embraced in this system are prohibited and those here prescribed will be strictly observed." A sketch of the history of drill regulations is briefly given and possesses interest. The American troops were drilled by the English tactics during the war of the Revolution. In 1779 congress adopted Baron Steuben's abridgement of the Prussian tactics. In 1812 an abridgement of the French tactics of 1791 was published by the war department. The "system of 1825" was adopted from the French, taken by them from the tactics of Frederick the Great and used through the Napoleonic wars. In 1834 Gen. Scott prepared the adaptation of the Prussian system known by his name. Casey's revision of Hardee's system was authorized during the civil war and continued in use until superseded in 1867 by Upton's tactics, which now give place to these regulations, prepared by a board consisting of leading infantry, cavalry and artillery officers. Their work has received the sanction of the president and is published by authority. Brown, Eager & Hull.

The new volume by the famous Egyptologist, G. Maspero, entitled "Life in Ancient Egypt and Assyria," translated for the publishers, Appleton & Co., New York, is on the Bee table. It presents vivid pictures of actual life in these ancient countries of culture and refinement and is fascinating in its descriptions. The author refers the reader to his history proper for an unbroken record of events. Epochs of the greatest interest are here chosen; for Egypt, that of Rameses II (fourteenth century before Christ); for Assyria, of the seventh century. Life in the palace and the hut, the fashion of the marriage rite and the funeral ceremony and all that pertained to their daily thought and deed is depicted. The one hundred and eight illustrations, by M. Faucher-Gudin, add greatly to the enjoyment and instructiveness of the work. Equipped with this volume and the collected papers of Amelia B. Edwards, one may study the ancient history of the oriental lands involved, with profit and satisfaction. For sale in Toledo by Brown, Eager & Hull.

A volume entitled "The Dog in Health and Diseases," by Dr. Wesley Mills, and published by D. Appleton & Co., discusses in detail the history of all the varieties of dogs, their breeding, education and general management in health and treatment in disease. The book is adapted to both the veterinarian, to whom the medical care of dogs is usually confided, and the general reader whose interest may be limited to that involved in the ownership of a single animal. The writer is professor of physiology in the faculty of veterinary science of McGill university, Montreal, the author of "Comparative Physiology" and other standard works on allied topics. The volume is handsomely printed and illustrated, and is probably the most exhaustive treatise of the kind extant.

The Adventures of a Fair Rebel, by Matt Crim, whose woman's hand is easily discernable in the work, is proving one of the most taking stories of the year. It has been reviewed in these columns at length and its success proves the truth of the prophecy that it was destined to become popular. Charles L. Webster & Co., N. Y., publishers.

"Transplanted Shame" is not a flashy story as its title might seem to indicate, but a collection of the essays of four of New York's most prominent citizens: a minister of the gospel, a doctor of medicine, an attorney-at law and a noted society leader, thus the announcement. A glance at its chapters warrants its recommendation for thoughtful perusal. No. 1 of Lew Vanderpoole's Bi-Monthly Series; 25 cents.

It is the design of the "Modern Science Series," published by D. Appleton & Co., to provide brief untechnical treatises for the educated layman who has neither time nor inclination to become a specialist, but who feels the need of informing himself on the present status of the various branches of science. The second volume is entitled The Horse: A Study in Natural History. It outlines the principal characteristics of the comparative anatomy of the horse and his near relations the tapir and the rhinoceros, and shows incidentally how a "missing link," described by Prof. Huxley some years ago, has since been found in the Lower Eocene deposits, thus identifying a connection believed to have existed in the ancient ancestry of the animals. The author is Wm. H. Flower, C. B., director of the British natural history museum.

Magazines.

From the Black Forest to the Black Sea, by Poultney Bigelow, is the opening paper in Harper's Monthly for February. It is an entertaining travel sketch, abundantly illustrated. Wm. McLennan contributes a French-Canadian dialect story: Marie. The Little Maid at the Door, by Mary E. Wilkins, is a pathetic story of puritan New England in the witchcraft days, idyllic in its treatment. A Skin for a Skin, by Julian Ralph, illustrated by Fred'k Remington, describes hunting and trapping in the Hudson's Bay country. Old Shipping Merchants of New York, richly illustrated, is written by George W. Sheldon. Probably the last "Study" by Howells appears in this issue as he goes to be editor of the Cosmopolitan. Perhaps the most-reviewed contribution to the number will be Amelie Rives Chanler's, Athelwold, a Play. It is Shaksperian without stint, and worthily so. It is seldom now-a-days that a poem by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps is seen in a magazine, but it is always a treasure trove when one does appear. The Stone Woman of Eastern Point, is a bit of the shore at Gloucester, finely imagined and shrined in poetic measure. The Royal Danish Theater, by Wm. Archer, and The Main Exhibit at Chicago, by Julian Ralph, are two readable papers.

The February North American Review contains a paper by Mr. Gladstone, on the Olympian religion; one by Hon. Richard Croker on Tammany Hall and the Democracy; How to Attack the Tariff, by Hon. Wm. M. Springer; A Claim for American Literature, by Clark Russell; On National Banks, by Edward S. Lacey, comptroller of the currency; Fires on Trans-Atlantic Steamers, by Earl de la Mar, who has been before the house of Lords with his proposition relative to imperfect stowage of cotton; the Duty and Destiny of England in Asia, by Sir Edwin Arnold; Railroads, trainmen and accidents, considered by Henry Cabot Lodge and H. G. Prout, editor of the Railway Gazette; Lotteries and Gambling by Anthony Comstock, and the Opera by Edmund C. Stanton, director of the Metropolitan opera house. A notable table of contents—live topics treated by distinguished scholars and authors.

The Review of Reviews, in its current issue, in "The Progress of the World," discusses lotteries, the silver question in the United States, the Chilean affair, the president's message, the gerrymander, the speakership contest, Canada's trade position, Brazilian affairs, political progress in England, Irish politics, affairs in China, and Australian progress. Pictures of the men, prominent in these affairs accompany the reviews. It is a wonderful work of selection and reduction performed for the busy reader. "The Czar and Russia of To-day," by W. T. Stead, is a review of George Kennan's two volumes of letters and observations on Siberia and its convicts, briefly for a text, and an essay upon Russian affairs in general. Residential clubs for young men and women, is a description, accompanied by a picture, of the Kennington Park Mansions. The Child Problem in Cities is discussed by John H. Finley, Elbridge Gerry and his work in the S. P. C. A. and the like labor of Benjamin Waugh in England are instructively sketched. Leading articles of the month, in different periodicals of the world cover the field admirably. Goldthwaite's Geographical Magazine receives this well-deserved compliment:

"Any one who cannot find something instructive and interesting in Goldthwaite's well-diversified pages must be a very blase person. Goldthwaite's possesses one unique characteristic—perhaps if it were one of the big guns of the magazine world it could not have it—it says as much about a subject as it has to say, and then stops; no padding to speak of."

Mrs. Lamb's Magazine of American history is also commended. Coincidentally the three poems it chooses to reprint are three already copied in the Bee.

With the February number, the Forum completes its 12th volume. As a medium for the discussion of the great problems of the day the magazine amply fulfills its mission. It has grown without interruption, in a commercial as well as literary sense (so we are assured by its proprietors). As a special feature of this number appears an explanation of three of the great industrial problems: The Nicaraugua Canal (in both its commercial and its political aspects), the further development of lake commerce and of ways to the sea, and the reclaiming of a great domain by irrigation. In the same way, the largest experiments that have been made in philanthropy—Gen. Booth's great plan of work in England and the German labor colonies for tramps—have been investigated by The Forum by Prof. Francis G. Peabody (who is now studying social systems in Germany), and by Dr. Albert Shaw, who went to London to study the results of the first year of Gen. Booth's work with the large sum that was collected in response to his appeal in "Darkest England."

Such original investigations as these, it is promised, will become more and more an important part of the work of The Forum.

With the year 1892, the Magazine of American History opens its twenty-seventh volume. Too much can not be said in praise of its continued excellence. It owes its popularity to its authentic history and the attractive manner of its presentation. The January number presents a varied and notably good table of contents. The frontispiece is a fine copy of a rare picture, Prince Henry of Portugal, made three hundred years ago. The Enterprise of Christopher Columbus is the leading paper, written by Hon. Arthur Harvey. Prince Henry the Navigator is the story in brief of the royal gentleman who was first to conceive the bold project that gave impulse to Columbus in his exploring expedition. There are a dozen other articles equally as valuable and readable. The magazine stands unrivaled in its particular line, and $5 a year is a low price for so important an addition to the library shelves.

The holiday number of Outing appears in cream-tinted, satin-faced paper cover, sprayed with gold and lettered in blue. The frontispiece is a skating picture, and the contents are bright and seasonable, first and last. Perhaps it is the only literary magazine of the month that has no woman's name in its list of contributors. The number is beautifully illustrated.

The American Agriculturist enters its semi-centennial period with the January number of the present year. The frontispiece gives fine pictures of its five editors: A. B. Allen, R. L. Allen, Orange Judd, Dr. Geo. Thurber, and Dr. F. M. Hexamer. A plesant reminiscence accompanies the pictures. It is a superb monthly magazine which every progressive farmer owes it to himself and his family and his business to have upon his reading and study table. The Orange Judd Co., N. Y. $1.50 a year.

The Domestic Monthly for February gives a handsome colored fashion plate, extra, which presents some exceedingly stylish modes. A great variety of information in dress and home matters, well illustrated, is furnished every month by this excellent periodical, all for $1.50 a year.

Belford's red-letters, a study of Brazilian Reciprocity by Fred Perry Powers. Its stories are above the average; its table of contents presents a pleasing variety and the editorial and department work is well done. Belford's is the only popular monthly periodical which prints its partisan bias with its title; a "Democratic Review." That is, it reviews political questions of the day in the spirit of broad and true democracy. Published in New York city for $3 a year.

Notes.

Syndicating is going out of fashion in the larger city dailies. Of late it has been impossible to sell serial rights of any but eminent authors, and such story writers as Bret Harte have had to go begging before they found a place. The dailies of New York are using original matter almost entirely, and undoubtedly other dailies about the country will follow closely in their suit.—Boston Brains.

And this may be why the managers of syndicate bureaus are working the press of the smaller cities and country towns so assiduously.

Renan's book of reminiscences is finished and will soon be issued from the press of Cassell & Co., London and New York. The translation is by Isabel F. Hapgood, a gifted linguist.

The Waverly Co., New York, publishes a translation of Laforet's fascinating fiction, "Morphine." The same house sends out "The Lazy Thoughts of a Lazy Girl," which has already reached its fourteenth edition in England.

No. 13 of the Human-nature library treats of character reading from photographs, by Nelson Sizer. Published by the Fowler & Wells Co., N. Y.

The national committee on improvement of highways of the league of American Wheelmen reprint in a neat pamphlet, a discussion on road improvement by Isaac B. Potter, Edward P. North and Prof. Lewis M. Haupt, which appears originally in the Engineering Magazine. They are full of good suggestions on road improvement and the distribution of them in this form must be productive of good results.

Rose Terry Cooke, Sarah Orne Jewett and, later, Mary E. Wilkins, have given us the truest-flavored New England stories on the list and Celia Thaxter, Lucy Larcom and Elizabeth Stuart Phelps the surest pictures in poetry. Mrs. Cooke calls her latest collection, "Huckleberries." (One is thankful she didn't spell it "whortle—).

The title of Tyndall's forthcoming book is New Fragments. Among the subjects which are treated in the 500 pages are "The Sabbath," "Life in the Alps," "The Rainbow and its Congeners," "Common Water," and "Atoms, Molecules, and Ether-Waves." In addition to the popular treatment of scientific themes, the author devotes several chapters to biographical studies of the utmost interest. Among the subject of these studies are Count Rumford and Thomas Young, and there are also chapters on "Louis Pasteur, his Life and Labors," and "Personal Recollections of Thomas Carlyle." Tyndall's New Fragments will be published immediately by D. Appleton & Co.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

Alexander Salvini in Don Cæsar De Bazan

To-Night, the Three Guardsmen To-Morrow—The Charity Ball Coming—A Fine Specialty Company.

To those lovers of high dramatic art the engagement of Alexander Salvini at the Wheeler to-night and to-morrow evening will be most welcome. Those who will remember Salvini as handsome Melnottoe or Romeo in the leading support of Margaret Mather will wish to see him in such characters as Don Caesar de Bazan and D'Artagnan, in both of which he has every opportunity for the display of his abilities as an actor. The opening performance on Friday night will be see Mr. Salvini in D'Ennery's magnificent romance, Don Caesar de Bazan, in which he plays the title role. Mr. Salvini is particularly suited to such characters, being young, handsome and vigorous, with magnincent physique, a rich, melodious voice, that gives to older theatergoers, as well as the rising generation, an ideal of the romantic heroes. In Don Caesar de Bazan and the Three Guardsmen Mr. Salvini offers two popular plays which call into requisition those peculiar charms which fit so well the character of the Spanish grandee, Don Caesar, and the light-hearted, dashing musketeer, D'Artagnan. On Saturday night Salvini will be seen as D'Artagnan in Dumas' great masterpiece, The Three Guardsmen, which he gives with special scenery. The sword contest, in which Salvini fights a cordon of soldiers of Richilieu's guards, gives him a place as the greatest swordsman on the American stage. Mr. Salvini has a large company and is supported by Miss Selena Fetter, the charming young actress. The sale of seats to-day has been very large. The engagement will be one of the events of the dramatic season.

Dorothy.

The pretty opera Dorothy was presented at the People's last evening to another packed house. This opera gives the company an opportunity to show its best side and the performance was very creditable. The Princess To-To will be played to-night.

The Charity Ball.

That famous society play, "The Charity Ball," by De Mille and Belasco, will be the attraction at Wheeler's next Wednesday and is the only play at the opera house next week. The Charity Ball made a big hit here last winter and will undoubtedly receive a warm welcome on this return engagement.

Variety.

The Philadelphia North American speaks as follows of the Boston Howard Athenaeum company, which will appear at the People's theater next week:

"Manager Gilmore's Central theater was crowded last night with an audience that applauded to the echo the star acts and specialties of that well known and deservedly popular aggregation, the Boston Howard Athenaeum company. This company has maintained a widespread reputation for the excellence of its vaudeville performances, and last evening the many novelties received as warm a welcome and as just a recognition as has in the past been accorded to the old-time favorites. Perhaps the most wonderful among the successes of the performance was Mlle. Bertoldi, who has recently come from Paris to astound us with the remarkable positions into which she twists her body. Kara is a king among jugglers, and at balancing, too, he is hard to beat. Then there were the famous Fulgora in lightning changes, and excellent song and dance acts by the Allisons and Josie and Eddie Evans, while the comic element was quite up to the general standard. Duncan, the mimic, furnished considerable amusement, and there were other good specialties, too."

THE DYNAMITE THAWED.

Frightful Explosion in the Mining Regions.

Thirteen Men in a Shanty Fearfully Lacerated While Eating Their Dinner—Peculiarity of the Wounds.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 29.—A terrific explosion of dynamite occurred at Honeybrook, a small mining town five miles from Hazelton, yesterday. Fifteen Hungarian miners were employed in coal stripping, operated by Dick & Mantz, at that place.

They were sitting around the stove in the workmen's shanty, eating their lunches, when several sticks of dynamite, which had been placed near the stove, exploded, blowing the shanty to fragments and scattering the inmates in all directions.

The shock of the explosion was heard five miles away. In a short time hundreds of people had gathered at the spot, and willing hands were soon aiding the wounded.

Two men, Adam Bornick and John Slavitski, were instantly killed, their bodies being shockingly mutilated. Of the other 13 not one escaped injury. Men were lying around in every direction, some with arms and legs broken and blood pouring from many gaping wounds. Seven doctors were soon on the spot attending to the injuries of the sufferers.

It is now believed that a number of the victims will die. Wagons filled with hay and straw were brought and many of the injured, amid groans and moans, were soon removed to places of comfort before sending them to the hospital at Hazelton.

Dr. Keller telegraphs that besides the fractures of skull and bones of the face and body of each patient contained scores of wounds made as if by bullets, their legs, arms and chests especially being pierced from two to four inches deep. The probing of their wounds did not reveal a single instance of any foreign body at the bottom of the wound. Most all of the unfortunates are married and have more or less large families.

APROPOS.

Here crashed a sturdy oath of stout John Bull,
Who damned away his eyes, as heretofore:
There, Paddy brogued "By Jasus! What's your wull?"
The temperate Scot exclaimed; the French ghost swore
In certain terms I shan't translate in full,
As the first coachman will; and 'midst the roar
The voice of Jonathan was heard to express,
"Our president is going to war, I guess."
—Byron.

POPPIE'S DILEMMA.

A biting east wind has everything its own way out-of-doors to-day. It whirls away in triumph the few brown leaves that have clung obstinately until now to the shivering branches of the big copper-beech opposite to the library window; it moans dismally in the chimneys, whistles shrilly through loose-fitting window frames, and in short makes itself as disagreeable as possible. But I, sitting in my favorite chair in the snug library, with my toes on the fender before a roaring fire and with a new and exciting "yellow-back" in my hand, bid defiance to the weather, congratulating myself that I have the afternoon free to enjoy myself in and need not go out side.

I have reckoned without my host, however, for, before I have read more than two chapters of my book, I hear a door open behind me and a voice say inquiringly:

"Susan!"

It is Poppie, and I know she will want to talk. I bend lower down over the fire with my elbows on my knees and pretend not to hear; perhaps she will go away again. Vain hope! She closes the door and comes toward me.

"Susan!" she says again.

"Well?" I reply unwillingly and without turning or raising my eyes.

"I want to talk to you," says Poppie coaxingly.

"I knew you did," is my inward remark. "Well," I repeat aloud, "what is it about?" And still I keep my eyes fixed on the page, devotedly praying that Poppie will repent of disturbing me when she sees how engrossed I am, and will leave me in peace. But she does no such thing; on the contrary, she kneels down upon the hearth-rug beside me and lays her two hands upon my book.

"Don't read, Susan," she says, in her pretty, imperative way; "I really have something to say to you."

With a faint sigh I lay down the book and turn to my sister. I do not know why or how it is, but I always find myself obeying Poppie with almost exemplary meekness.

"What have you to say?" I ask resignedly.

"It is about something that happened while I was at the Nugents'," begins Poppie.

"Oh, I'm sure you must have told me everything about that visit!" I interrupt impatiently.

"Did I ever say anything of a Mr. Harris?"

"No; I think not—I don't remember," I reply doubtfully.

"Well, then, you must know he was staying there too, nearly all the time that I was," says Poppie, sitting on the floor beside me, her hands clasped around her knees and her face turned toward the fire. He is a youngish-oldish man—you know what I mean—no particular age—very tall and big, with a large round face, like a red moon more than anything else. He is a retired merchant or manufacturer, and has heaps of money which he has made in business. He has a lovely place somewhere in the Lake country and a splendid house in Park lane, and Mrs. Nugent told us that he must have at least 20,000 a year." She pauses, and, taking up a poker, begins most unnecessarily to stir the fire.

"Well, is that all?" I ask, after a short silence.

"Not quite all," replies Poppie, calmly, with her back still toward me, and emphasizing her words with little taps of the poker upon a spluttering, fizzing log. "He asked me to marry him."

She speaks with such utter unconcern that for a moment I do not believe her.

"You are joking!" I cry wrathfully, taking up my "yellow back" again; "and I call it a very poor joke indeed, if you care for my opinion on the subject!"

"It is not a joke, Susan—really and truly it is not!" declares Poppie, dropping the poker with a clatter into the fender and turning around to me. "I am quite in earnest I assure you."

For a few seconds I stare at her in silent amazement. Then she begins to laugh.

"Is it then so surprising?' she asks, putting her lovely face close to mine and glancing saucily up at me. "Susan, do for pity's sake shut your eyes and mouth! You look so utterly absurd!"

"Well," I ejaculate, "I must confess I am surprised; I have not quite taken it in yet. But why did you not tell me of it before?" I add reproachfully. "You came home on Monday last, and this is Thursday—I call it a shame!"

"But, now that I have told you, what do you say?"

"I think it is by far the most delightful piece of news I ever heard!" I answer excitedly. "To think that you will have 20,000 a year and a house in Park lane and—"

"Stop, stop!" cries Poppie. "You are running on much too fast, Susan, for I—I did not accept him."

"Didn't accept him?" I echo blankly.

"My poor Susan," says Poppie, laughing again as she puts her soft little hand upon mine, "are you terribly disappointed?"

"I am," I reply solemnly and mournfully—"dreadfully disappointed! It would be, oh, so nice if you were married to such a delightfully rich man as this Mr. Harris seems to be! But of course there is no use in my saying anything now, since you have refused him;" and I end with a regretful sigh.

Poppie gets up from the floor and, drawing a chair close to mine, sits down. "Susan," she says, "I want to ask your advice."

I do my best to suppress my astonishment at this remark, for never before was my sister Poppie known to seek advice—at any rate of me—and respond inquiringly:

"Yes, dear?"

"I did not exactly refuse Mr. Harris—wait a moment until I have done, please!"—as I prepare to give vent to a volley of delighted exclamations—"I said 'No' over and over again when he asked me; but—I don't know why it was—he would not take 'No' for an answer—perhaps"—smiling a little—"he was too conceited—at any rate, he could not bring himself to believe that I really meant to decline the honor he wished to confer upon me. He declared that a woman's 'No' always meant 'Yes,' and he bothered me so that for the sake of peace I agreed to take a week to think over the matter, and at the end of that time to write and give him my final answer. The week will be up to-morrow, so I must come to a speedy decision. I told him at the time that thinking it over would not make any difference, that my reply must always be the same; but now—I don't know—perhaps he was right—I have thought and re-thought until I am half distracted, and I don't know in the least what to say to him, after all. There now—I have told you the whole story, Susan, and I want you to help me."

"It is hard for me to advise you, Poppie," I say slowly, after we have sat for some time in silence. "You see, I have never seen this Mr. Harris, and never even heard of him until this afternoon. What kind of a man is he?"

"I don't think he is anything out of the common, one way or the other," my sister answers reflectively. "He is good natured and generous after a fashion; he has an exalted opinion of his own merits and his money; and—yes, decidedly there is a touch of vulgarity about him!"

"But he is fond of you?" I ask quickly.

Poppie smiles slightly.

"Well, yes, I think so," she replies; "at any rate, he no doubt considers that I should suit his purpose very well. He wants some one to wear his diamonds for him, drive in his carriages and fill his great houses with smart people—in fact to help show off his wealth; and all that I could do very well."

"It would be very nice to be rich, though," I murmur half to myself.

"Yes—I know that; but is money everything?" says Poppie.

"Of course you could not be expected to love him," I begin hesitatingly.

"Of course not. What an idea!"

"But so many people marry for money nowadays; and you don't"—I pause for a few seconds and the ncontinue nervously—"you don't love any one elese, I suppose, Poppie?"

"I suppose not," she returns.

"Are you sure?" I ask, inwardly quaking as to the result of my boldness. "Because"—

"Because what?" she says a little sharply.

"Because I once fancied—I may have been wrong, and you must not be vexed with me if I was—but I did fancy there was something between you and—and Jack Neville," I blurt out desperately.

Poppie flushes scarlet and frowns; then she asks quietly:

"What made you think so?"

"Oh, I don't know—lots of things!" I reply. "You have been a great deal together all your lives, and—. But I suppose I was wrong; there is nothing"—

"Nothing whatever—you are quite wrong!" she answers, but she avoids my glance and moves restlessly in her chair.

"I am sorry," I say stupidly; "I should have liked Jack for my brother-in-law, and"—

I come to a sudden stop, for Poppie has risen quickly from her seat and stands before me with angry eyes and flushed cheeks. The next minute, however, she presses her quivering lips together and turns away.

"You have wandered from the point, as usual, Susan," she says coldly. "We were discussing Mr. Harris, not Jack Neville, and we do not seem to be getting any nearer to a decision."

"Suppose you write a letter and see what it looks like?" I suggested.

She walks over to the little writing-table by the window, and, sitting down before it, opens the blotter and dips a pen into the ink.

"Which ought I to put, Susan—'Dear Mr. Harris' or 'My Dear Mr. Harris?'" she asks doubtfully.

"That will depend, I think, on what you are going to say," I reply. "Try 'Dear' first."

"What comes next, supposing this to be a refusal, you know?"

"'Much as I appreciate the honor you have done me,'" I prompt glibly, "'I regret that I must adhere to my former decision.'"

"It sounds just like a Polite Letter-Writer," objects Poppie; "but I suppose I must put something like that;" and she puts it down. "It looks perfectly horrid, Susan!" she goes on plaintively. "Oh, why did I ever say I would write? I had no idea that it would be so difficult! If one could put just plain 'Yes' or 'No,' and sign one's name to it, how much easier it would be!"

"Try something else, then; see what it would look like if you said 'Yes.'"

She takes a fresh sheet of paper.

"I suppose it must be 'My Dear' this time," she says, sighing. "Well, Susan, I've committed myself so far; but it seems more hopelessly hard than the refusal. How in the world am I to word it?"

While I rack my brains for a suitable sentence, Poppie gazes disconsolately out of the window. Suddenly the pen falls from her fingers and she pushes back her hair with a suppressed exclamation, as some one on a brown cob rides swiftly past the window.

"Who was it?" I ask eagerly, getting up.

"It was Jack," replies Poppie slowly. She had risen to her feet and stands with her hand on the back of the chair.

"How nice of him to come over and see us! I don't believe he has been here since you went to the Nugents'," I say delightfully, as I throw another log on the fire in anticipation of our visitor. But, when I turn again toward my sister I perceive that she has hurried to the door and is in the act of turning the handle. "Poppie," I cry, flying across the room to her side, "where are you going?"

"I have a headache—I— Oh, Susan, let me go! You can tell Jack I was sorry not to see him—anything you like, but"—She pulls her arm from my detaining grasp and opens the door for flight; but she is too late—Jack Neville is already standing on the mat outside.

"How are you?" I say cheerfully, as I hold out a welcoming hand to him. "I have not seen you for so long that I had almost forgotten what you are like!"

He laughs a little as he shakes hands with me, and then turns quickly to Poppie, who is standing silently beside me with her eyes fixed on the carpet.

"So you have come back at last?" he says.

"It appears so," she returns, still without looking at him.

"Before you went away we quarreled, Poppie didn't we?" he goes on hastily. "Are we friends again now, or are we enemies?"

Slowly Poppie looks up from the floor to his face; then she colors a little as she puts her hand into his and answers nervously—

"Let us be friends."

"Well, Susan," says Jack a little later, as he stands with his back to the fire sipping hot tea, "have you any news to tell me?"

"No," I reply, shaking my head as I shut the lid of the teapot with a bang; "but I might have if"—

"What an enigmatical remark!" he exclaims, laughing. "What does it mean? You might have if—what?"

"I am not sure if I may tell you," I answer, casting a doubtful look at Poppie.

"Oh, then it concerns Poppie, does it, this mysterious piece of news?"—and he glances at her too.

"May I tell?" I asked persuasively.

"Certainly, if you wish to do so," returns my sister.

"Well, then, Jack, Poppie has had a proposal from a very rich man and she can't make up her mind whether to accept him or not. Isn't it odd?"

"Isn't what odd?"

"That she is not able to decide what to say to him. Of course it would not be a love-match; but then she would have—oh, everything she could possibly want; and, if that would not satisfy her and make her happy forever after, as the story books say, what would?"

"What, indeed!" says Jack slowly and thoughtfully. "As you say, Susan, it is very odd."

I have known Jack Neville from my childhood; still I do not quite understand him. He has an uncomfortable way of seeming to agree with one, yet there is an indescribable something in his very quietness of face and manner which arouses a suspicion that he is laughing at one all the time. "Jack, I am really in earnest," I say a little reproachfully.

He turns to me quickly.

"So am I, Susan."

And as I look searchingly at him I cannot detect the faintest glimmer of a laugh on his grave, handsome face or in his steady eyes.

"Well, then, I wish you would help me to decide for Poppie. Of course I only want to do what will be for her happiness"—

"Of course," he interposes gravely; "but what way do Poppie's own inclinations lie?"

"I assure you I have no inclination one way or the other," she says hurriedly, with a faint, nervous little laugh; "I stand on perfectly neutral ground; it is a matter of absolute indifference to me."

"That being the case would it not be the fairest and simplest way to draw lots?" Jack quietly suggests.

"Of course it would! How stupid not to have thought of that before!" I cry, rising quickly and running over to the writing table. "I will just write 'Yes' on one piece of paper and 'No' on another, and then fold them in exactly the same way."

When I return with the neatly folded slips of paper in my hand I notice with some surprise that my sister is flushed and that her eyes gleam excitedly, which seems strange in a person who barely five minutes ago declared herself perfectly indifferent as to the upshot of the affair.

"Now then, Poppie, will you draw?" I say briskly. "I myself do not really know which is which."

Quickly drawing back her dark head, Poppie steps forward. Jack is standing at a little distance behind her, intently watching as she stretches out her hand toward the paper that is to decide her fate. She hesitates for a moment, touching the slips irresolutely, then her fingers close firmly upon one.

"I will take this," she says a little excitedly.

"Very well. Now be quick and open it, for I do not know which it is!" I cry eagerly.

As she stands before me without moving, all the bright pretty color fades out of her face.

"I am afraid to look," she says in a tone that is only little louder than a whisper; then she turns round suddenly to Jack. "Will you read it for me?" she says, putting the paper hurriedly into his hand and drawing a deep breath.

Slowly—oh, so slowly—Jack unfolds the little slip and reads the one word written on it. Poppie is trembling all over and her eyes are bent on his face, which wears a curious expression, such as I never saw there before.

There is a short silence, and then Jack looks up, his eyes meet Poppie's eager ones and he laughs a little.

"The fates have proved themselves kind for once, at any rate," he says. "I must congratulate you, Poppie."

"You mean—what?" she says, and then stops, unable to say more.

"You have drawn 'Yes'" says Jack slowly.

"Oh, how"—I begin ecstatically, but get no further. What on earth has happened to Poppie and Jack? She has started forward with a sudden cry, and they are now staring at each other in the most extraordinary way, while his face has become almost as pale as hers.

She snatches away the paper he is holding out to her, tears it furiously across and across, and then, throwing away the pieces, bursts into tears.

"Poppie, Poppie," I cry, dismayed at this most unexpected turn of affairs, "why, how can you be such a baby? Of course you needn't"—

But here Jack gently puts me aside and, coming close up to my sobbing sister, calmly takes one of her hands in his own.

"Poppie," he says kindly, "do not distress yourself, do not cry so. Did you think for a moment that I would let you marry that man? And you actually dared to say it was a matter of indifference to you when you knew that I loved you, and when I knew— Oh, Poppie, my darling, did you think I did not know?"

He is not satisfied now with holding her hand; he puts his arm round her and draws her pretty head down upon his shoulder.

At this juncture it dawns upon me that my presence is most unnecessary, so I steal away softly, leaving them alone. And I am very certain that poor Mr. Harris will have to look out for another suitable person to wear his diamonds now.

HEALTHY. HAPPY. WHY?

Is he a bright child? Does he look healthy and happy? He is bright, and he is both healthy and happy. He is the little son of Mrs. Henry T. Bowers, wife of the well-known contractor and builder, who resides in Dorchester avenue, South Boston. Mrs. Bowers has had quite an experience with her children, which experience we give in her own words, as follows:

"I have a little boy two and one-half years of age, the perfect picture of rugged health, and also a little girl of four. I attribute their good health and good temper to the use of Dr. Hand's Remedies.

I have used, as occasion required, the entire line, and have had very marked results from the Colic Cure, Cough and Croup Medicine, and the Pleasant Physic. I have never had any but good result from the use of any of them."

No mother would make a statement like the above unless she knew wholly whereof she affirmed.

Nearly every pattern of 5/A Horse Blanket is imitated in color and style. DR. S. E. McCREARY PERMANENTLY LOCATED.

SPECIALTIES: Female, Lung, Private and Chronic Diseases.

CATARRH, so very common in this climate, is not a local disease as is generally supposed, but is constitutional, showing itself locally in some of the mucous membranes of the body, and to remove it permanently you have to remove the cause. In fact the only way of treating any disease is by removing the cause that produces it, and nature will do the rest. This is the manner in which we treat all diseases under our specialties and the secret of our success is in the ability to determine the starting point or cause of your trouble.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS OR LOSS OF MANHOOD, AND ERRORS OF YOUTH, POSITIVELY CURED.

PILES permanently cured without the use of a knife or any surgical operation whatever. POSITIVELY NO CASE TAKEN THAT CANNOT BE CURED.

Correspondence accompanied by 4 cents in stamps will be held with the strictest secrecy and will be promptly answered.

DOCTORS DISAGREE.

Three Theories About Catarrh.

Is Catarrh a Local, Constitutional or Systematic Disease.

Discussed in a Lecture by Dr. S. B. Hartman, at the Surgical Hotel, Columbus, Ohio.

Reported for the Press.

There are three distinct theories held by the medical profession as to the nature of the disease known as catarrh. Each of them is believed and taught by different physicians of eminence and equal learning. Briefly stated, they are as follows:

First—That chronic catarrh is a local disease. This theory denies that catarrh is caused either by any derangement of the system or by any constitutional taint, but is solely limited to the part or parts which are visibly affected. The practitioners who hold to this theory treat every case of catarrh locally, and rarely, if ever, give medicine internally. My opinion is, however, that local applications can never cure chronic catarrh. The various kinds and modes of local applications, such as sprays, atomizers, douches, inhalants, fumigations, creams, ointments, lotions, gargles, etc., etc., have in many cases a soothing effect on the inflamed surfaces, and are sometimes useful to assist a cure; but neither of them nor all of them together ever did or ever will cure a case of catarrh. These things may give temporary relief, but it is useless to expect a cure of them. Catarrh is not a local disease, hence cannot be cured by local treatment.

The second theory of the nature of catarrh is, that it is a constitutional or blood disease. Those who believe this theory to be the true one treat chronic catarrh only with blood medicines, hoping, by cleansing the blood, to eradicate the disease. Thus it is that we find a certain class of physicians hoping to cure catarrh by the use of sarsaparillas, alteratives, and various other compounds to cleanse the system. While it is no doubt true that many cases of chronic catarrh are associated with or complicated by constitutional diseases, such as scrofula, erysipelas, syphilis, etc., yet catarrh is distinct from them and can not be cured by blood medicines. Of course it is sometimes necessary in cases where the catarrh is complicated by constitutional disease to first cleanse the system; but even after this is done thoroughly the catarrh remains the same as ever unless some specific for the catarrh itself is used to complete the cure. Catarrh is not a blood disease, hence cannot be cured by blood medicines.

The third theory is that catarrh is a systemic disease, and therefore requires persistent internal treatment, sometimes for many months, before a permanent cure is effected. I believe this theory to be the correct one. The mucous lining of the cavities of the head, throat, lungs, etc., are made up of a net-work of minute blood-vessels called capillaries. The capillaries are very small elastic tubes, which, in all cases of chronic catarrh, are congested or bulged out with blood so long that the elasticity of the tubes is entirely destroyed. The nerves which supply these capillaries with vitality are called the "vasa-motor" nerves. Any medicine to reach the real difficulty and exert the slightest curative action in any case of catarrh must operate directly on the vasa-motor system of nerves. As soon as these nerves become strengthened and stimulated by the action of a proper remedy they restore to the capillary vessels of the various mucous membranes of the body their normal elasticity. Then, and only then, will the catarrh be permanently cured. Thus it will be seen that catarrh is not a blood disease, as many suppose, but rather a disease of the mucous blood vessels. This explains why it is that so many excellent blood medicines utterly fail to cure catarrh.

The only hope of success in the permanent cure of a case of chronic catarrh is to devise some remedy that will stimulate the nerves which supply the capillary blood vessels. I know of but one remedy that has this most desirable effect, and that remedy is Pe-ru-na. This remedy strikes at once the root of the catarrh by restoring to the capillary vessels their healthy elasticity. Pe-ru-na is not a temporary palliative, but a radical cure.

If the chronic catarrh be of a mild character, take a tablespoonful of Pe-ru-na before each meal and at beditime, and continue it without the least interruption until a perfect cure is effected. But if the disease is of long standing, and there is much hawking and expectoration, begin with the above dose and gradually increase the dose to two tablespoonfuls before each meal. If the chronic catarrh is of the atrophic variety (that is, forming large, dry scabs in the nose, or when the breath is very offensive from the ulceration going on under the scabs), the dose should be increased to three tablespoonfuls before each meal. In this and all other chronic diseases, should the bowels be dry or constipated, take a sufficient dose of Man-a-lin at bedtime to produce one natural passage of the bowels each day.

Anyone desiring further particulars should write The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Co. of Columbus, O., for a free copy of The Family Physician No. 2—a most admirable treatise on acute and chronic catarrh, coughs, colds, la grippe, and all other climatic diseases of winter.

THE LATEST TERM.

The words "dress," "gown" and "suit" have been stricken from the list of fashion talks and nothing but frocks are admitted. It is all very very English, of course, but it also quite a universal term. Girls, belles and matrons bring home a frock or two from Paris; they have a cloth frock to run around town in, make calls, or to do mission work; for the theater they have a little silk frock, a cloth or a velvet frock for dinner, and get into a gauze frock for the dance or house party.—Chicago Mail.

THE ANCIENT NEIL HOUSE.

As the Neil house, Columbus, is too ancient to meet modern requirements, its present proprietors, Messrs. Henry McKennie & Son, have decided to give up its lease on April 1. The hotel was built before the war and has not been modernized to any extent, consequently it is behind the times in its appointments as a first-class house. The trustees of the estate have advertised for bids for a new lease, and if no one agrees to accept it the house will be closed after the retirement of the present proprietors.

A TRUTH FROM "TRUTH."

The New York Central is really first-class in all its appointments. Think of it, it has four tracks laid with the heaviest of steel rails in the most substantial manner, and when you are sleeping or lounging around in one of their superb Wagner cars, and flying along at the rate of nearly a mile a minute, as some of their fast expresses do, you will hardly realize that you are moving, so excellent is the permanent way. A short time ago a special train made the run from New York to Buffalo at the rate of a mile a minute the entire distance.

Don't experiment with your health. You may be sure of the quality of your medicine, even if you have to take much of your food upon trust. Ask your druggist for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and no other It is the standard blood-purifier, the most effective and economical.

She was just 26 days hauling the 324 pieces, and is at it yet.—Augusta (Me.) Journal.

THE LIGHT OF ASIA.

Sir Edwin Arnold has been telling his friends in New York that in one of the towns in which he recently gave a reading there was a tall, gaunt, raw-boned man in the audience who regarded the proceedings with disapproval. Finally he got up and went out, but as he passed by the doorkeeper hailed him and asked if he liked the performance. "Don't," was the reply; "I've been swindled, that's what it is. Why, all the people and papers have been speaking of this Arnold as the 'Light of Asia,' and I'll bet all I've got that he ain't no Chinee." The doorkeeper let him go without further parley.
